Foreword

The Blue Book is made up of information of State, Federal and Local Governments as well as various Clubs and Organizations throughout the State and statistical information of some interest.

My very deep appreciation goes to the administrators of the various agencies represented therein and to the county clerks and mayors throughout the State for their fine cooperation in supplying information from counties and cities.

This being a Bi-Centennial year in our Nation, we are including with this volume in lieu of the State Highway Map, a listing of Commemorative Events planned in the State throughout the year, which we trust will be of some value to each of you receiving the publication.

Also, you will find updated cumulative lists of all members of the Legislature, Elective and Appointive Officials of State Government since 1863, together with dates of the Sessions of the Legislature, Regular, Special and Extended.

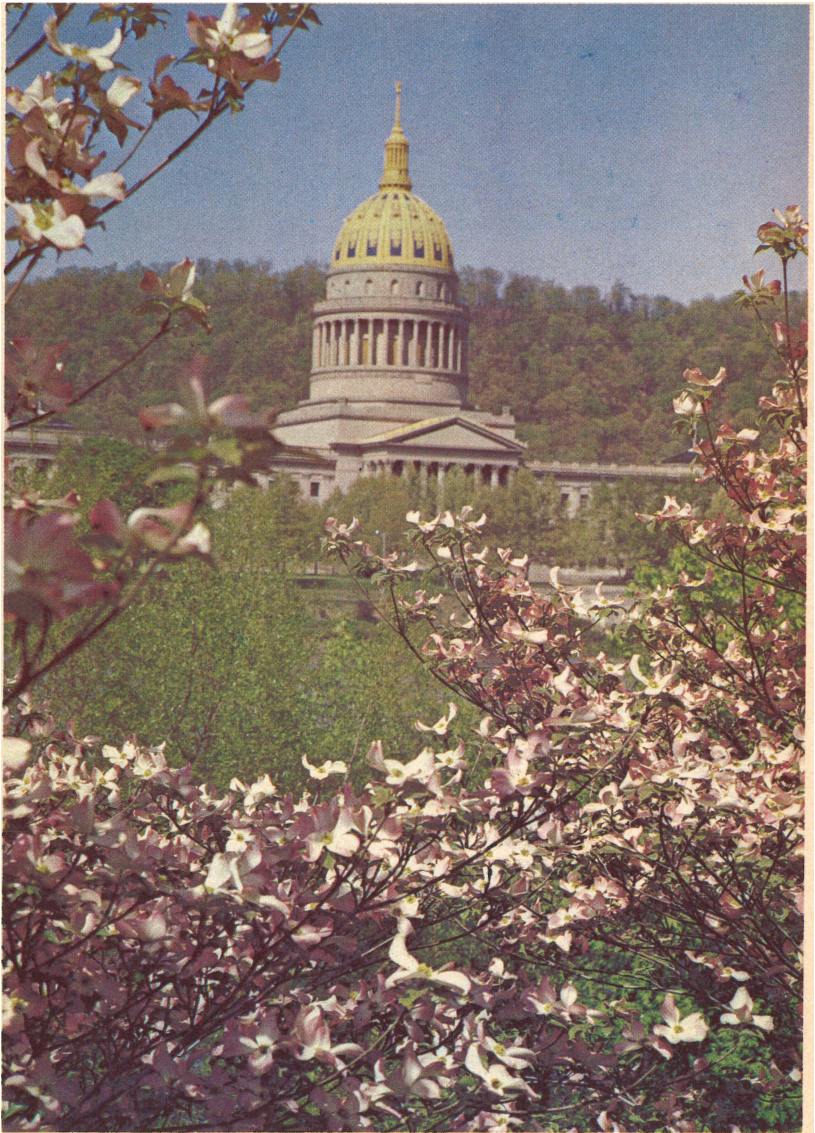

It is my sincere hope the recipients of this edition will find it informative and useful.

WEST VIRGINIA BOARD OF REGENTS*1316 Charleston National Plaza

The West Virginia Board of Regents, created in 1969, is the governing body for all state colleges and universities. The Board controls, supervises and manages the financial, business and educational policies and affairs of the state colleges and universities, makes studies and recommendations respecting higher education in West Virginia, and allocates among the state colleges and universities specific functions and responsibilities. It submits a budget for the state system of higher education to the appropriate executive and legislative agencies of the State Government and allocates funds to the institutions from the appropriation which it receives.

The Board is composed of ten members, nine of whom are appointed by the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate, for six-year terms. The State Superintendent of Schools is an ex officio member. Not more than five of the appointed members can belong to the same political party and at least one member must be appointed from each congressional district.

The Board holds at least six meetings a year with the annual meeting in June. Members receive $50 per diem while engaged in the work of the Board, plus actual expenses. A president, who cannot succeed himself, and any other officers deemed necessary, are elected annually. The Board employs a Chancellor and such professional, administrative and clerical personnel as are necessary, and prescribes their duties and compensation. (Code 18-26)

Each board is required to adopt an official seal, make such rules and regulations, not inconsistent with law, as it deems best, and hold at least two meetings each year. Each board is also given power to compel the attendance of witnesses, and its officers are authorized to administer oaths.

Each applicant for license or registration must transmit with his application an examination fee of $20, unless a different fee is especially provided by law. Each board is allowed to charge $5 for each license or certificate issued and the same sum for every duplicate thereof. An applicant who has been refused a license, or a licensee whose certificate has been revoked has the right to appeal from the action of the board to the Circuit Court of the county in which he resides.

Unless otherwise specified, members of boards are allowed $35 per day for each day actually spent in attending sessions of the board or of its committees and in necessary travel, and entitled to reimbursement for all actual and necessary expenses in carrying out their official duties.

THE WEST VIRGINIA STATE BAR (Integrated)

Offices: State Capitol

Created by the Supreme Court of Appeals under its inherent rule-making power as authorized by Chapter 44, Acts of the Legislature, 1945. The court adopted and promulgated a definition of the practice of law; a code of professional ethics, a code of judicial ethics and a constitution and by-laws for the government of the State Bar, effective May 1, 1947. Its membership consists of all persons lawfully admitted to the practice of law in West Virginia. No person can practice law in the State of West Virginia unless he is a member in good standing of The West Virginia State Bar. There are two classes of membership—active and inactive. The annual active membership fee is now $35.00 for members who have been admitted to practice for more than three years and $15.00 for members who have been admitted to practice for not more than three years.

The objects of the State Bar are to protect the interests of the public; to advance the administration of justice and the science of jurisprudence; to improve the relations between the public and the Bench and the Bar; to uphold and elevate the standards of honor, integrity, competency and courtesy in the legal profession; and to encourage cordial relations among its members. It is its declared purpose to give effect to pertinent rules of the Supreme Court of Appeals, and to perform the functions expressed in its Constitution and By-Laws. A principal duty of the State Bar is to uphold the standards of professional ethics and to diligently and vigilantly investigate and prosecute violations of these standards.

The State Bar is governed by a Board of Governors, consisting of all officers, except the secretary-treasurer, as ex officio members, and sixteen Governors, one Governor being elected by the members of the Bar by a secret mail ballot in each of the sixteen State Bar Districts. Officers are a president, chairman of the board, first vice president, second vice president and secretary-treasurer.

ARTICLE I

Relations to the Government of the United States

§1. The State of West Virginia is and shall remain, one of the United States of America. The Constitution of the United States of America, and the laws and treaties made in pursuance thereof, shall be the supreme law of the land.

Internal Government and Police

§2. The government of the United States is a government of enumerated powers, and all powers not delegated to it, nor inhibited to the states, are reserved to the states or to the people thereof. Among the powers so reserved to the states is the exclusive regulation of their own internal government and police; and it is the high and solemn duty of the several departments of government, created by this Constitution, to guard and protect the people of this State, from all encroachments upon the rights so reserved.

Continuity of Constitutional Operation

§3. The provisions of the Constitution of the United States, and of this State, are operative alike in a period of war as in time of peace, and any departure therefrom, or violation thereof, under the plea of necessity, or any other plea, is subversive of good government, and tends to anarchy and despotism.

Representatives to Congress

§4. For the election of representatives to Congress, the State shall be divided into districts, corresponding in number with the representatives to which it may be entitled; which districts shall be formed of contiguous counties, and be compact. Each district shall contain as nearly as may be, an equal number of population, to be determined according to the rule prescribed in the Constitution of the United States.

ARTICLE II

The State

§1. The territory of the following counties, formerly parts of the commonwealth of Virginia, shall constitute and form the State of West Virginia, viz:

The counties of Barbour, Berkeley, Boone, Braxton, Brooke, Cabell, Calhoun, Clay, Doddridge, Fayette, Gilmer, Grant, Greenbrier, Hampshire, Hancock, Hardy, Harrison, Jackson, Jefferson, Kanawha, Lewis, Lincoln, Logan, Marion, Marshall, Mason, McDowell, Mercer, Mineral, Monongalia, Monroe, Morgan, Nicholas, Ohio, Pendleton, Pleasants, Pocahontas, Preston, Putnam, Raleigh, Randolph, Ritchie, Roane, Summers, Taylor, Tucker, Tyler, Upshur, Wayne, Webster, Wetzel, Wirt, Wood and Wyoming. The State of West Virginia includes the bed, bank and shores of the Ohio River, and so much of the Big Sandy River as was formerly included in the Commonwealth of Virginia; and all territorial rights and property in, and jurisdiction over, the same, heretofore reserved by, and vested in, the Commonwealth of Virginia, are vested in and shall hereafter be exercised by, the State of West Virginia. And such parts of the said beds, banks and shores as lie opposite, and adjoining the several counties of this State, shall form parts of said several counties respectively.

The remaining four counties mentioned above were created by acts of the legislature as follows: Mineral county, from Hampshire county, on February 1, 1866; Grant county, from Hardy county, on February 14, 1866; Lincoln county, from parts of Cabell, Putnam, Kanawha and Boone counties, on February 23, 1867; and Summers county, from parts of Greenbrier, Monroe, Mercer and Fayette counties, on February 27, 1871. After the ratification of the Constitution of 1872, Mingo county was created by act of the legislature from Logan county, on February 23, 1895, to make a total of fifty-five counties.]

Powers of Government in Citizens

§2. The powers of government reside in all the citizens of the State, and can be rightfully exercised only in accordance with their will and appointment.

Requisites of Citizenship

§3. All persons residing in this State, born, or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, shall be citizens of this State.

Equal Representation

§4. Every citizen shall be entitled to equal representation in the government, and, in all apportionments of representation, equality of numbers of those entitled thereto, shall as far as practicable, be preserved.

Provisions Regarding Property

§5. No distinction shall be made between resident aliens and citizens, as to the acquisition, tenure, disposition or descent of property.

Treason, What Constitutes—Penalty

§6. Treason against the State, shall consist only in levying war against it, or in adhering to its enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason, unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court. Treason shall be punished according to the character of the acts committed, by the infliction of one, or more, of the penalties, of death, imprisonment or fine, as may be prescribed by law.

“Montani Semper Liberi”—State Seal

§7. The present seal of the State, with its motto, “Montani Semper Liberi,” shall be the great seal of the State of West Virginia, and shall be kept by the secretary of state, to be used by him officially, as directed by law.

Writs, Commissions, Official Bonds—Indictments

§8. Writs, grants and commissions, issued under the authority of this State, shall run in the name of, and official bonds shall be made payable to the State of West Virginia. Indictments shall conclude, “Against the peace and dignity of the State.”

ARTICLE III

Magistrates Servants of People

§2. All power is vested in, and consequently derived from, the people. Magistrates are their trustees and servants, and at all times amenable to them.

Rights Reserved to People

§3. Government is instituted for the common benefit, protection and security of the people, nation or community. Of all its various forms that is the best which is capable of producing the greatest degree of happiness and safety, and is most effectually secured against the danger of maladministration; and when any government shall be found inadequate or contrary to these purposes, a majority of the community has an indubitable, inalienable, and indefeasible right to reform, alter or abolish it in such manner as shall be judged most conducive to the public weal.

Writ of Habeas Corpus

§4. The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended. No person shall be held to answer for treason, felony or other crime, not cognizable by a justice, unless on presentment or indictment of a grand jury. No bill of attainder, ex post facto law, or law impairing the obligation of a contract, shall be passed.

Excessive Bail Not Required

§5. Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishment inflicted. Penalties shall be proportioned to the character and degree of the offence. No person shall be transported out of, or forced to leave the State for any offence committed within the same; nor shall any person, in any criminal case, be compelled to be a witness against himself, or be twice put in jeopardy of life or liberty for the same offence.

Unreasonable Searches and Seizures Prohibited

§6. The rights of the citizens to be secure in their houses, persons, papers and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated. No warrant shall issue except upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, particularly describing the place to be searched, or the person or thing to be seized.

Freedom of Speech and Press Guaranteed

§7. No law abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press, shall be passed; but the legislature may by suitable penalties, restrain the publication or sale of obscene books, papers, or pictures, and provide for the punishment of libel, and defamation of character, and for the recovery, in civil actions, by the aggrieved party, of suitable damages for such libel, or defamation.

Senators and Delegates—Terms of Office

§3. Senators shall be elected for the term of four years, and delegates for the term of two years. The senators first elected, shall divide themselves into two classes, one senator from every district being assigned to each class; and of these classes, the first to be designated by lot in such manner as the senate may determine, shall hold their seats for two years, and the second for four years, so that after the first election, one half of the senators shall be elected biennially.

Division of State Into Senatorial Districts

§4. For the election of senators, the State shall be divided into twelve senatorial districts, which number shall not be diminished, but may be increased as hereinafter provided. Every district shall elect two senators, but, where the district is composed of more than one county, both shall not be chosen from the same county. The district shall be compact, formed of contiguous territory, bounded by county lines, and, as nearly as practicable, equal in population, to be ascertained by the census of the United States. After every such census, the legislature shall alter the senatorial districts, so far as may be necessary to make them conform to the foregoing provision.

Senatorial Districts Designated

§5. Until the senatorial districts shall be altered by the legislature as herein prescribed, the counties of Hancock, Brooke and Ohio, shall constitute the first senatorial district; Marshall, Wetzel and Marion, the second; Ritchie, Doddridge, Harrison, Gilmer and Calhoun, the third; Tyler, Pleasants, Wood and Wirt, the fourth; Jackson, Mason, Putnam and Roane, the fifth; Kanawha, Clay, Nicholas, Braxton and Webster, the sixth; Cabell, Wayne, Lincoln, Boone, Logan, Wyoming, McDowell and Mercer, the seventh; Monroe, Greenbrier, Summers, Pocahontas, Fayette and Raleigh, the eighth; Lewis, Randolph, Upshur, Barbour, Taylor and Tucker, the ninth; Preston and Monongalia, the tenth; Hampshire, Mineral, Hardy, Grant and Pendleton, the eleventh; Berkeley, Morgan and Jefferson, the twelfth.

After Census, Delegate Apportionment

§7. After every census the delegates shall be apportioned as follows: The ratio of representation for the house of delegates shall be ascertained by dividing the whole population of the State by the number of which the house is to consist and rejecting the fraction of a unit, if any, resulting from such division. Dividing the population of every delegate district, and of every county not included in a delegate district, by the ratio thus ascertained, there shall be assigned to each a number of delegates equal to the quotient obtained by this division, excluding the fractional remainder. The additional delegates necessary to make up the number of which the house is to consist, shall then be assigned to those delegate districts, and counties not included in a delegate district, which would otherwise have the largest fractions unrepresented; but every delegate district and county not included in a delegate district, shall be entitled to at least one delegate.

Designation of Delegate Districts

§8. Until a new apportionment shall be declared, the counties of Pleasants and Wood shall form the first delegate district, and elect three delegates; Ritchie and Calhoun the second, and elect two delegates; Barbour, Harrison and Taylor the third, and elect one delegate; Randolph and Tucker the fourth, and elect one delegate; Nicholas, Clay and Webster the fifth, and elect one delegate; McDowell and Wyoming the sixth, and elect one delegate.

To Ohio County, four delegates.

Arrangement of Senatorial and Delegate Districts

§10. The arrangement of the senatorial and delegate districts, and apportionment of delegates, shall hereafter be declared by law, as soon as possible after each succeeding census, taken by authority of the United States. When so declared they shall apply to the first general election for members of the legislature, to be thereafter held, and shall continue in force unchanged, until such districts shall be altered, and delegates apportioned, under the succeeding census.

Additional Territory May Be Admitted into State

§11. Additional territory may be admitted into, and become part of this State, with the consent of the legislature and a majority of the qualified voters of the State, voting on the question. And in such case provisions shall be made by law for the representation thereof in the senate and house of delegates, in conformity with the principles set forth in this Constitution. And the number of members of which each house of the legislature is to consist, shall thereafter be increased by the representation assigned to such additional territory.

These oaths shall be administered in the hall of the house to which the member is elected, by a judge of the supreme court of appeals, or of a circuit court, or by any other person authorized by law to administer an oath; and the secretary of state shall record and file said oaths subscribed by each member; and no other oath or declaration shall be required as a qualification. Any member who shall refuse to take the oath herein prescribed, shall forfeit his seat; and any member who shall be convicted of having violated the oath last above required to be taken, shall forfeit his seat and be disqualified thereafter from holding any office of profit or trust in this State.

Each house shall determine the rules of its proceedings and be the judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of its own members. The senate shall choose, from its own body, a president; and the house of delegates, from its own body, a speaker. Each house shall appoint its own officers, and remove them at pleasure. The oldest delegate present shall call the house to order at the opening of each new house of delegates, and preside over it until the speaker thereof shall have been chosen and has taken his seat. Each house shall have power to provide for its own safety, and the undisturbed transaction of its business, and may punish, by imprisonment, any person not a member, for disrespectful behavior in its presence; for obstructing any of its proceedings, or any of its officers in the discharge of his duties, or for any assault, threat or abuse of a member, for words spoken in debate. But such imprisonment shall not extend beyond the termination of the session, and shall not prevent the punishment of any offence, by the ordinary course of law.

Accounting for State Moneys

§27. Laws shall be enacted and enforced, by suitable provisions and penalties, requiring sheriffs, and all other officers, whether State, county, district or municipal, who shall collect or receive, or whose official duty it is, or shall be, to collect, receive, hold or pay out any money belonging to, or which is, or shall be, for the use of the State or of any county, district, or municipal corporation, to make annual account and settlement therefor. ### Requirement for Reading of Bills

§29. No bill shall become a law, until it has been fully and distinctly read, on three different days, in each house, unless, in case of urgency, by vote of four fifths of the members present, taken by yeas and nays on each bill, this rule be dispensed with: Provided, in all cases, that an engrossed bill shall be fully and distinctly read in each house.

Acts to Embrace But One Object—Time of Effect

§30. No act hereafter passed, shall embrace more than one object, and that shall be expressed in the title. But if any object shall be embraced in an act which is not so expressed, the act shall be void only as to so much thereof, as

And no act of the legislature, except such as may be passed at the first session under this Constitution, shall take effect until the expiration of ninety days after its passage, unless the legislature shall by a vote of two thirds of the members elected to each house, taken by yeas and nays, otherwise direct.

How Bills May Be Amended

§31. When a bill or joint resolution, passed by one house, shall be amended by the other, the question on agreeing to the bill, or joint resolution, as amended shall be again voted on, by yeas and nays, in the house by which it was originally passed, and the result entered upon its journals; in all such cases, the affirmative vote of a majority of all the members elected to such house shall be necessary.

"Majority" Defined

§32. Whenever the words, "a majority of the members elected to either house of the legislature," or words of like import, are used in this Constitution, they shall be construed to mean a majority of the whole number of members to which each house is, at the time, entitled, under the apportionment of representation, established by the provisions of this Constitution.

Compensation and Expenses of Members

§33. Members of the legislature shall receive such compensation in connection with the performance of their respective duties as members of the legislature and such allowances for travel and other expenses in connection therewith as shall be (1) established in a resolution submitted to the legislature by the citizens legislative compensation commission hereinafter created, and (2) thereafter enacted into general law by the legislature at a regular session thereof, subject to such requirements and conditions as shall be prescribed in such general law. All voting on the floor of both houses on the question of passage of any such general law shall be by yeas and nays to be entered on the journals.

The members shall be broadly representative of the public at large. Members of the legislature and officers and employees of the State or of any county, municipality or other governmental unit of the State shall not be eligible for appointment to or to serve as members of the commission. Each member of the commission shall serve for a term of seven years, except of the members first appointed, one member shall be appointed for a term of one year, and one each for terms ending two, three, four, five, six and seven years after the date of appointment. As the term of each member first appointed expires, a successor shall be appointed for a seven-year term. Any member may be re-appointed for any number of terms, and any vacancy shall be filled by the governor for the unexpired term. Any member of the commission may be removed by the governor prior to the expiration of such member's term for official misconduct, incompetency or neglect of duty. The governor shall designate one member of the commission as chairman. The members of the commission shall serve without compensation, but shall be entitled to be reimbursed for all reasonable and necessary expenses actually incurred in the performance of their duties as such members.

The commission shall meet as often as may be necessary and shall within fifteen days after the beginning of the regular session of the legislature in the year one thousand nine hundred seventy-one and within fifteen days after the beginning of the regular session in each fourth year thereafter submit by resolution to the legislature its determination of compensation and expense allowances, which resolution must be concurred in by at least four members of the commission.

Notwithstanding any other provision of this Constitution, such compensation and expense allowances as may be provided for by any such general law shall be paid on and after the effective date of such general law. Until the first such general law becomes effective, the provisions of this section in effect immediately prior to the ratification of this amendment shall continue to govern.

It also increased the additional compensation of the speaker of the house and the president of the senate from two to five dollars a day and made compensation payable upon adoption of the amendment.

The third amendment of this section was proposed by House Joint Resolution No. 8, 1970; submitted by Acts 1970, c. 22; and ratified on November 3, 1970. The amendment, which was designated the "Legislative Improvement Amendment," rewrote this section.

The budget shall contain a complete plan of proposed expenditures and estimated revenues for the fiscal year and shall show the estimated surplus or deficit of revenues at the end of each fiscal year. Accompanying each budget shall be a statement showing: (a) An estimate of the revenues and expenditures for the current fiscal year, including the actual revenues and actual expenditures to the extent available, and the revenues and expenditures for the next preceding fiscal year; (b) the current assets, liabilities, reserves and surplus or deficit of the State; (c) the debts and funds of the State; (d) an estimate of the State's financial condition as of the beginning and end of the fiscal year covered by the budget; (e) any explanation the governor may desire to make as to the important features of the budget and any suggestions as to methods for reduction or increase of the State's revenue.

The governor may, with the consent of the legislature, before final action thereon by the legislature, amend or supplement the budget to correct an oversight, or to provide funds contingent on passage of pending legislation, and in case of an emergency, he may deliver such an amendment or supplement to the presiding officers of both houses; and the amendment or supplement shall thereby become a part of the budget bill as an addition to the items of the bill or as a modification of or a substitute for any item of the bill the amendment or supplement may affect.

(5) The legislature shall not amend the budget bill so as to create a deficit but may amend the bill by increasing or decreasing any item therein: Provided, that no item relating to the judiciary shall be decreased, and except as otherwise provided in this Constitution, the salary or compensation of any public officer shall not be increased or decreased during his term of office: Provided further, that the legislature shall not increase the estimate of revenue submitted in the budget without the approval of the governor.

Subsection D—General Provisions

(8) If the budget bill shall not have been finally acted upon by the legislature three days before the expiration of its regular session, the governor shall issue a proclamation extending the session for such further period as may, in his judgment, be necessary for the passage of the bill; but no matter other than the bill shall be considered during such an extension of a session except a provision for the cost thereof.

(9) For the purpose of making up the budget, the governor shall have the power, and it shall be his duty, to require from the proper state officials, including herein all executive departments, all executive and administrative officers, bureaus, boards, commissions and agencies expending or supervising the expenditure of, and all institutions applying for state moneys and appropriations, such itemized estimates and other information, in such form and at such times as he shall direct. by the auditor, shall be transmitted to the governor in such form and at such times as he shall direct, and shall be included in the budget.

(10) The governor may provide for public hearings on all estimates and may require the attendance at such hearings of representatives of all agencies and all institutions applying for state moneys. After such public hearings he may, in his discretion, revise all estimates except those for the legislative and judiciary departments.

(11) Every budget bill or supplementary appropriation bill passed by a majority of the members elected to each house of the legislature shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the governor. The governor may veto the bill, or he may disapprove or reduce items or parts of items contained therein. If he approves he shall sign it and thereupon it shall become a law. The bill, items or parts thereof, disapproved or reduced by the governor, shall be returned with his objections to each house of the legislature.

Each house shall enter the objections at large upon its journal and proceed to reconsider. If, after reconsideration, two thirds of the members elected to each house agree to pass the bill, or such items or parts thereof, as were disapproved or reduced, the bills, items or parts thereof, approved by two thirds of such members, shall become law, notwithstanding the objections of the governor. In all such cases, the vote of each house shall be determined by yeas and nays to be entered on the journal.

A bill, item or part thereof, which is not returned by the governor within five days (Sundays excepted) after the bill has been presented to him shall become a law in like manner as if he had signed the bill, unless the legislature, by adjournment, prevents such return, in which case it shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state, within five days after such adjournment, and shall become a law; or it shall be so filed within five days with the objections of the governor, in which case it shall become law to the extent not disapproved by the governor.

(12) The legislature may, from time to time, enact such laws, not inconsistent with this section, as may be necessary and proper to carry out its provisions.

(13) In the event of any inconsistency between any of the provisions of this section and any of the other provisions of the Constitution, the provisions of this section shall prevail. But nothing herein shall be construed as preventing the governor from calling extraordinary sessions of the legislature, as provided by section nineteen of this article, or as preventing the legislature at such extraordinary sessions from considering any emergency appropriation or appropriations.

(14) If any item of any appropriation bill passed under the provisions of this section shall be held invalid upon any ground, such invalidity shall not affect the legality of the bill or of any other item of such bill or bills.

Former Owner's Privilege

§5. The former owner of any such land, shall be entitled to receive the excess of the sum for which the land may be sold over the taxes charged and chargeable thereon, or which, if the land had not been forfeited, would have been charged or chargeable thereon, since the formation of this State, with interest at the rate of twelve per centum per annum, and the costs of the proceedings, if his claim be filed in the circuit court that decrees the sale, within two years thereafter.

[Editor's note.—The amendment of this section was proposed by House Joint Resolution No. 4, Acts 1933, 2nd Ex. Sess., p. 583; submitted by Acts 1933, 2nd Ex. Sess., c. 72; and ratified on November 6, 1934. The amendment rewrote this section. Prior to the amendment this section provided for the forfeiture of tracts containing one thousand acres or more, did not expressly provide for owners of undivided interests, and did not mention county and district taxes.

It was held, before the amendment, that although this section provided for the forfeiture of lands containing one thousand acres or more, it did not limit such forfeiture to such tracts, and that an act providing for the forfeiture of a less number of acres than one thousand, for nonentry upon the land books, was merely cumulative and not inhibited by this section of the Constitution. See State v. Swann, 46 W. Va. 128, 33 S.E. 89 (1899).]

ARTICLE XIV

Superintendent: Robert J. Klein. Business Manager: Orland J. Massi. Capacity 80.

Davis Center for Boys is located at Davis, Tucker County, West Virginia, one mile west of Rt. 32. It was authorized by an act of the Legislature in 1955 and was established in 1956. It houses youthful male offenders between the ages of sixteen and twenty-one who have been convicted of or who have plead guilty to criminal offenses, other than capital offenses, and who in the opinion of the committing court, are amenable to discipline other than in close confinement. WEST VIRGINIA INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL FOR BOYS*Grafton 26375

Superintendent: James D. Kerns. Assistant Superintendent: Charles N. Taylor. Business Manager: Robert R. Rogers. Capacity 200.

The West Virginia Industrial School for Boys is located at Pruntytown, three miles west of Grafton on U. S. Route 50. It was established by an act of the Legislature in 1889 and formally opened July 21, 1891. In addition to the principal buildings, which are located on the main campus consisting of approximately 55 acres, the School owns and operates a farm of approximately 1,900 acres on which are located a considerable number of farm buildings. The boys work on the farm during the farming season at which time emphasis is placed on the training value of such a program, directed toward improving work habits and maintaining discipline standards. For use at the School a dairy herd of registered cows is maintained on the farm and milk is pasteurized and homogenized in the modern plant of the institution.

The School now has a vocational rehabilitation training program consisting of certified vocational instructors for full-time vocational instruction in the fields of industrial arts, auto mechanics, welding, vocational agriculture and building trades. In addition to this, there are training units in shoe repairing, baking, butchering and meat cutting. The academic school is operated on approved State standards and contains grades one through twelve. Educational TV is a part of the academic program and instruction is offered in the preparation and presentation of TV programs. In compliance with the State law, those under sixteen years of age are required to attend academic school for a term of ten months each year. A well-planned recreation and physical education program operates under the supervision of competent men. Football, basketball (indoor and outdoor), baseball, softball, volleyball, swimming, track and horseshoe pitching form the backbone of this program.

A Classification Unit classifies each boy upon his reception, presents him for parole and/or discharge at the proper time and maintains liaison between County and State authorities. In most instances, the boys are placed in cottages according to their age or size or both. An honor system has been established as a stimulant to good behavior and achievement for the boys and it is working well. A Drum and Bugle Corps, consisting of approximately 40 boys, is in operation and appears at many parades and festivals through the year, and there is now an active Boy Scout Troop. A full-time Chaplain, especially trained for this work, offers classes in religious education in the academic school and holds weekly religious services for the boys. ## HUTTONSVILLE CORRECTIONAL CENTER

Huttonsville 26273

Warden: Lloyd E. Haynes. Associate Warden: Robert Richards. Deputy Warden: Harry Griffith. Business Manager: Herbert E. Ferrell. Inmate capacity 550.

The Huttonsville Correctional Center is located on a farm near Huttonsville in Randolph County, approximately 18 miles south of Elkins on U. S. Routes 219 and 215. It was established by an act of the Legislature in 1937 and remained a part of the West Virginia Penitentiary until 1947. At that time the Legislature established it as a separate institution. The 1970 Legislature changed the name to the Huttonsville Correctional Center.

Originally established to relieve overcrowding at the West Virginia Penitentiary, the inmates were employed almost totally in general farm work. It was not until recent years that meaningful vocational and educational programs were implemented. Inmates are able to obtain their GED Certificates and engage in college credit courses provided by a cooperative program with Davis and Elkins College located in Elkins. Vocational courses offered include auto mechanics, welding, sheet metal, air-conditioning and refrigeration, upholstery, woodworking, masonry, engine repair, typing, heavy equipment operation, electronics and TV repair, meat cutting and mechanical drawing.

This institution serves as the intake point for all adult male felons. At intake they are placed in the diagnostic and classification unit and for a period of four to six weeks undergo diagnostic and classification, testing, counseling, and evaluation. Based on the information gathered from this unit the inmate is then placed in either the West Virginia Penitentiary or remains at the Center and is directed into a vocational and educational program. The same diagnostic services are provided to the Courts upon request as presentence evaluations provided by the 1972 Legislature. Quarters at this facility consist of modernly equipped dormitories with no provisions for extended individual confinement.

The farm consists of over 5,000 acres of which about 2,000 acres are suitable for cultivation and pasture. Farm products produced are generally in excess of the needs of this Center and the surplus is sold to other state institutions. A modern cannery is operated as part of the farm program.

HOSPITALS AND SANITARIUMS*ANDREW S. ROWAN MEMORIAL HOME

Sweet Springs 24980

Business Manager: O. B. Grimmett.

The Andrew S. Rowan Memorial Home for aged men and women was established by an act of the Legislature in 1945 and opened to guests July 1, of the same year. Named in honor of Andrew Summers Rowan, a Monroe County native who was famous for his Spanish-American War exploits. This story tells of Rowan's landing near Turquino Peak, Cuba, in April, 1898, to contact the insurgent leader General Garcia. The carrying of the message and returning with information about the insurgents was of immense value to military operations in Cuba later.

This Institution is located at Sweet Springs, Monroe County, in the heart of the Blue Grass Section, on State Route No. 3, midway between Union and White Sulphur Springs.

There are many historical facts and traditions associated with the buildings and grounds. The oldest and largest building was completed in 1833 and is of the Thomas Jefferson design and named in his honor. A ninety-six bed annexation to the building was completed in 1958. A new 100 bed dormitory was completed and occupied October 1, 1974.

There are six-hundred ninety acres including two hundred twenty-five of farm and pasture lands along with thirty buildings. On the farm a herd of 100 head of swine are maintained and utilized by the institution.

To be eligible for admittance, all applicants must have attained the age of at least sixty-two years and have been residents of the State of West Virginia for at least one year prior to making application. The guest must be ambulatory and fully capable of taking care of personal needs.

A medical examination is required along with a chest x-ray. Applications for admittance are available through the Commissioner of Public Institutions, Room 100-W, State Capitol, Charleston, West Virginia 25305.

BARBOURSVILLE STATE HOSPITAL

Barboursville

In 1941, the State purchased 24 acres of land in Cabell County and two buildings that had been used as dormitories for Morris Harvey College. The buildings were reconditioned and equipped and on January 20, 1942, the Barboursville unit was officially opened. Located off U. S. Route 60 at Barboursville, the hospital was originally named the Barboursville Unit of Weston State Hospital. The 1947 Legislature changed the name to Barboursville Unit of Huntington State Hospital, and the 1949 Legislature established it as Barboursville State Hospital.

In 1947, funds were appropriated for an administration building and for a storage building. The 1949 Legislature made an additional appropriation for construction of a laundry building and for additional renovation of old buildings. In 1957, $100,000 was appropriated for construction and furnishing of a male employees' dormitory and in 1964 this building was converted into a patients' self-government ward.

In June, 1967, ground was broken for an activities building which has provided classroom, workshop and auditorium facilities for training, education, and recreation activities. More recent physical improvements include new fire escapes, fire alarm systems, air-conditioning, as well as renovation to the heating and electrical systems.

Barboursville functions slightly different from the other institutions since there are no direct admissions. The older mentally retarded are transferred there from Weston, Spencer, Lakin, and Huntington State Hospitals, Colin Anderson Center and private hospitals.

Barboursville was the first hospital to institute a camping program. In 1967, 32 patients, fifteen staff members, and five VISTA Volunteers pioneered the camping program for hospitalized mental patients. The positive changes in patients were noticeable immediately. Patients who had not changed in years began to respond. The therapeutic possibilities of camping seemed unlimited. Today there is a state camping coordinator and camping programs at each of the State's six institutions. The program ranges from daily trips to two-week programs for advanced campers with over 1,000 patients from all hospitals participating in the program.

COLIN ANDERSON CENTER

St. Marys

Colin Anderson Center is located four miles north of St. Marys, on State Route 2, in Pleasants County. Established in 1921 by an act of the Legislature, it was formerly known as the West Virginia Training School. In 1965, the Legislature changed the name of the institution to Colin Anderson Center, in honor of the late Dr. Anderson who served as superintendent with dedication and devotion from 1958 until his death in 1964.

Colin Anderson Center, located on a 694 acre plot, is the State's only residential treatment center for the mentally retarded. Designed as a training facility, it has over the years accumulated a large number of severely retarded whose potential for profiting from training programs is limited. Intensive training programs have been developed, however, and small numbers of residents are being released to productive semi-independent lives in the community.

A special education program was organized in September, 1966, and accredited in August, 1967, by the State Department of Education. The program includes early childhood education, kindergarten, primary classes, intermediate classes, prevocational training, adult education, and classes for the physically handicapped. Also offered are swimming, scouting, recreation, arts and crafts, library, homemaking, and good grooming instruction. Educational seminars, tours, and workshops are held periodically. Weekly church services are provided in the community and on grounds by the Pleasants County Ministerial Association. An active volunteer services corps consisting of over 150 community volunteers provide additional services to the children and three busses are available to transport the children to off-grounds trips and to community-oriented activities.

The center is operated to provide complete care for mentally retarded children. It is recognized that some children are unable to benefit from a training program and for these custodial care is provided, always with a view to increasing their comfort and safety, as well as promoting some degree of self-care and independence.

A halfway or readjustment house, located in Parkersburg, is providing a transitional experience toward independent living for young males. It is staffed with two houseparents, a social worker, and a recreation supervisor.

A new behavior modification program called ECHO—each child has opportunity—is now in operation for the severely mentally retarded. The project stresses reward for normal behavior and has proven successful with this disability group.

An activities building and four residential cottages were ready for occupancy in 1972.

Approximately 150 persons in the State serve as foster grandparents to patients at Colin Anderson Center, Lakin State Hospital, and the Charleston Day Care Center.

DENMAR STATE HOSPITAL

Hillsboro

Clinical Director: Harvey A. Martin, M.D. Acting Superintendent: Carl E. Wiemer. Patients: 200.

Denmar State Hospital is located in the Allegheny Mountains approximately six miles southeast of Hillsboro in Pocahontas County on an eminence overlooking the Greenbrier River. The building and the site, at about 2200 feet above sea level, are among the most beautiful in the State. The 185 acre tract is used to support a dairy facility, a swine production program, and extensive vegetable gardening; the entire production of the farm being used by Denmar and other State institutions.

At Denmar, care and treatment are available to the needy, geriatric patients for extended care, who are residents of West Virginia approved by the Commissioner of Public Institutions.

FAIRMONT EMERGENCY HOSPITAL

Fairmont

Clinical Director: Paul S. Gotses, M.D. Acting Superintendent: Blake Boggess.

This is a general hospital located in Fairmont, Marion County, which was constructed in 1899 for the purpose of treating persons who had sustained occupational injuries.

In addition to serving private patients, the Institution now provides medical and surgical services for medically indigent citizens residing in Northern West Virginia and for the residents and patients of all State penal, correctional, charitable and mental institutions which are located in that area of the State.

The physical facilities of the hospital have steadily improved and include an iron lung, new x-ray unit and remodeling of the x-ray room. Additional staff have made it possible to further improve the services furnished by the hospital.

GREENBRIER COMMUNITY MENTAL HEALTH/MENTAL RETARDATION CENTER

Lewisburg

Program Director: W. Lee Herron, Ph.D. Average Daily Population: 33.

On July 1, 1973, the former Greenbrier College for Women was purchased by the West Virginia Department of Mental Health and converted into a Community Mental Health/Mental Retardation Center serving primarily the four county area of Greenbrier, Nicholas, Pocahontas and Webster counties.

The Center is situated on a 103 acre site in downtown Lewisburg and is readily accessible to the primary service area.

The facilities house the former Greenbrier Mental Health Center, offering outpatient, emergency, guidance, counseling and similar mental health services; the regional Center on Alcoholism and Drug Abuse, providing therapy, counseling, guidance, etc.; and day care for mentally retarded youth.

A residential program for mentally retarded residents, not limited to the four county area, will accommodate approximately 150.

Since the inception of the facility many major renovations have been undertaken and some recent ones are continuing to date. In undertaking the process of transition from a college facility to that of a mental retardation center, it is necessary to revamp the physical plant in order to adjust satisfactorily to our specific needs. In efforts to accomplish this end, various constructional renovative measures have been undertaken.

At present approximately 90 employees perform those duties necessary to run the Center. In many areas, work shifts are on a 24 hour, 3 shift basis especially in the areas of nursing, psychiatric aides and maintenance.

The Greenbrier Community Mental Retardation Center holds the belief that it may best serve the citizens of West Virginia by developing programs which are designed to maintain and/or return children to both mainstream community life and education as rapidly as feasible. That is, institutionalization may be avoided if (1) support services are provided in an effort to maintain the mentally retarded in the community, and (2) intensive interventions are provided which will provide the child with needed skills and supports to return to community life.

GUTHRIE CENTER

Charleston

Acting Clinical Director: Kenneth L. Clark, M.D. Average daily population: 46.

Guthrie Center is located five miles north of Charleston on U. S. Route 21. Formerly Guthrie Air Force Base, the center began operation in 1969. The purpose of Guthrie was to relieve the overcrowding at Spencer State Hospital by transferring patients, who could make adjustment back to normal living, to a facility that specialized in half-way rehabilitative services.

During the first two years of operation, Guthrie served 265 patients and reduced the population at Spencer by nearly 200. Admissions are mainly from Spencer, but patients from other institutions, as well as from the local community, are accepted.

The programs are designed primarily for those patients whose psychiatric condition has improved to the extent that they are considered nearly ready for return to their home communities. In this context, a geriatric unit was opened in 1974.

An alcoholic treatment unit is in operation serving primarily Region III. A drug treatment unit was dedicated in May of 1975 and is the only inpatient drug facility in the state.

The Media Center which includes the pamphlets, brochures and film library has been moved from Central Office to the Center.

In addition, staff development and orientation programs for new employees are held intermittently at Guthrie.

HOPEMONT STATE HOSPITAL

Hopemont

Clinical Director: Hilton D. Rocha. Acting Superintendent: William H. Lovett. Capacity: 300.

Hopemont State Hospital, formerly known as Hopemont Sanitarium, is located on a 1,000 acre tract of land at Hopemont, near Terra Alta, in Preston County, and was founded in 1913 as a hospital for the treatment of tuberculosis. In 1965, legislation was enacted to change the name of the hospital and to convert it to an institution for the chronically ill.

The medical staff is composed of a clinical director, a consultant and four full-time resident physicians.

The service also includes a full time laboratory technician, X-ray technician, physical therapist, speech therapist, one social worker, a part-time registered dietitian and a part-time registered pharmacist. In-service training of nurses, along with both male and female aides, is given to enable up-to-date training for continued geriatric care.

Other units of the institution consist of residences, nurses' home, post office, maintenance shops, laundry and a farm where a registered Holstein herd of cows provides milk for the facility, a piggery provides pork and a sizeable truck farm provides garden products in season.

HUNTINGTON STATE HOSPITAL

Huntington

Clinical Director: Jorge V. Ottaviano, M.D. Superintendent: Randall Baumgardner. Average daily resident population: 712.

Located in Huntington—the county seat of Cabell County, Huntington State Hospital was authorized by an act of the Legislature in 1897.

The rated bed capacity is 608, but the hospital serves approximately 850 patients daily, from the twelve-county area of Cabell, Fayette, Lincoln, Logan, McDowell, Mercer, Mingo, Monroe, Raleigh, Summers, Wayne, and Wyoming counties.

The hospital is maintained and equipped to provide modern treatment for all types of mental illness. The physical plant includes an administration building and four ward buildings. There are facilities for all patient-care services such as laundry and kitchen and also occupational and recreational therapy.

One of the ward buildings has been established for medical services including surgery, x-ray laboratory, electro-cardiograph, and a modern pharmacy. A vocational rehabilitation center is located on the grounds to complement the other programs.

During 1970 Huntington State Hospital completed the transformation of the entire hospital into a geographical unit system. This was accomplished by the movement of 712 patients into four units—each staffed with doctors, nurses, social workers, adjunctive therapists and a complement of aides. Rehabilitation personnel are also available in each of the units and psychological services are provided on a consultant basis. Each of these units relates to a community mental health center in its respective area.

An alcoholic treatment unit—with a bed capacity of 18—was established in order to give a home to the program that had been in operation for several years. Aversion therapy was also added in 1970 for treatment of chronic alcoholics.

Huntington State Hospital was the first State institution with a residential psychiatric affiliation program for student nurses. This unit is utilized by Wheeling, Parkersburg, and Bluefield School of Nursing, as well as by a non-residential program for Marshall University, Morris Harvey College, St. Mary's Hospital and King's Daughters Hospital School of Nursing. A total of 315 students from six schools of nursing participated this year.

The hospital conducts in-service training programs for its psychiatric aides, nurses, and other professional and sub-professional personnel.

A camping program is conducted each summer and continues to be one of the highlights of patient activities.

Adult education classes were started in 1970 and patients may pass the GED test (high school equivalency) as a result of this program.

A Behavior Modification program was begun in late 1972 with a program of self-care techniques being utilized with the severely mentally retarded patients in the initial phase.

LAKIN STATE HOSPITAL

Lakin

Lakin State Hospital was founded by an act of the Legislature in 1919 and was opened in 1926 for the reception and treatment of Negroes suffering from mental and nervous disorders; however, the staff and patient population have been integrated since 1954.

Located some 10 miles from Point Pleasant, Lakin State Hospital is situated on a large level plot with many acres of adjoining farm land. Lakin serves a population of around 62,000 in Mason, Jackson, and Putnam counties as well as emotionally disturbed children and hardcore alcoholics from throughout the State.

Two three-story brick buildings house the male and female dormitories. Another building contains administrative office areas, laboratory and x-ray units, central supply, and the treatment center for emotionally disturbed children. A newer structure houses the kitchen, dining area for patients, and offices for ancillary personnel. The Lakin Post Office is also located on these grounds.

A new dormitory for both male and female residents was recently completed and in May, 1971, the hospital dedicated a new activities building that provides space for classrooms, chapel services, canteen and recreation. Built with state and federal funds, this new building permitted the expansion of programs for both adult patients and children.

Most of the accepted methods of diagnosis and treatment are utilized including clinical observation, social service, psychological testing, neurological and electroencephalography, occupational music, recreation therapy, and psychotherapy in addition to full utilization of the tranquilizing drugs in an effort to maintain the institution as a treatment hospital rather than an institution for custodial care. The Foster Grandparent project is active in the unit for emotionally disturbed children.

A self-government group is operating in each of the buildings for adults in an effort to strengthen the patients' sense of independence. The Chaplain conducts regular church services each Sunday and is active in the program for chronic alcoholics.

A vocational rehabilitation center is located on the grounds in what was formerly the male employees' dormitory. Services provided through this center include remedial and special education, cosmetology, homemaking, and manual arts. Patients are screened here for admission to the Rehabilitation Center at Institute for further job training.

In 1952 the hospital received a gold medal national award for achievement presented by the Hospital Institute of the American Psychiatric Association.

PINECREST HOSPITAL

(Tuberculosis and Geriatric Extended Care)

Beckley

Clinical Director: H. S. Edwards, M.D. Acting Superintendent: C. O. Smith, Jr.

Pinecrest Hospital located at Beckley, in Raleigh County, was authorized by an act of the Legislature in 1927 and formally opened March 18, 1930. At that time the hospital was named Rutherford Sanitarium but the 1934 Legislature changed the name to Pinecrest Sanitarium, and the 1970 Legislature renamed it Pinecrest Hospital.

Pinecrest Hospital is located on Federal Routes 19-21 and State Highways 3-41 with thirty-minute bus service connecting with the city and Atlantic Greyhound bus lines, also with the C. & O. Railway at Prince.

The Hospital has a fifty-acre campus, and a 200-acre farm, which is modernly equipped for farming, and a dairy herd of 55 Holstein cows supplying milk for the institution. A large number of hogs are raised and sold at a public livestock market. Pinecrest Hospital is composed of four modern fireproof units all connected under one roof, with 536 beds for patients, a modern fireproof nurses' home, five modern dwellings for staff physicians, seven cottages for employees, a central heating plant, dairy barn, hog barn, laundry and numerous outside buildings.

An act of the Legislature in 1965 discontinued Hopemont Sanitarium as an institution for tuberculosis patients, thus making Pinecrest the only tuberculosis institution in West Virginia.

Further decrease of the disease of tuberculosis resulted in many empty beds. Accordingly, the Commissioner of Public Institutions instituted a policy of admitting chronically ill patients to this hospital where they are housed and treated in areas apart from the tubercular patients. On December 1, 1970, a ward of thirty-five beds was opened and filled almost immediately. In September of the following year an additional ward was opened and forty patients admitted. During 1971 and the years following three additional wings were opened for treating geriatric extended-care patients.

Patients admitted to Pinecrest Hospital are assigned to individual physicians who carry out therapeutic procedures that are recommended by the entire staff. In this manner, the patient is given the benefit of consultation by the entire medical staff. The Pinecrest staff is composed of a Clinical Director, Superintendent, Thoracic Surgeon, five full-time physicians, two x-ray technicians and two laboratory technicians.

The Hospital is modern in every respect, with the most modern equipment available for the treatment of tuberculosis, both surgical and medical. A recreational director and trained medical social workers are employed full-time. The Hospital has the services of a full-time Chaplain.

RONEY'S POINT

Triadelphia

Roney's Point, formerly the Ohio Tuberculosis Sanitarium, was established in 1967 by an act of the Legislature. Patients were first admitted in mid-1970 following extensive repairs to the physical plant.

The program at the facility is designed to provide an opportunity for residents of the Northern Panhandle area, who have been hospitalized at Weston State Hospital, to be reintroduced to their homes and communities.

An Alcoholic Treatment Unit opened in November of 1972.

SPENCER STATE HOSPITAL

Spencer

Clinical Director: Robert A. Jenkins, M.D. Superintendent: J. R. Daniell. Average daily resident population: 555.

Located in Spencer, the county seat of Roane County, Spencer State Hospital was authorized by an act of the Legislature in May, 1887, and formally opened in 1893.

Spencer serves the eight-county area of Pleasants, Wirt, Calhoun, Roane, Clay, Kanawha, Wood and Boone counties, a total population exceeding 375,000.

The hospital is located on an 18 acre tract with its own water supply. An additional 109 acres are located about two miles from the hospital in an area known as Trotter Lake and is used as a recreational area for patients as well as a water shed for the dam that impounds approximately 25,000,000 gallons of water in the lake.

The hospital recently completed a geographic relocation of patients. Thus patients from a county or group of counties are located in a manner to provide a home and community relationship within the hospital. Specialized units are still maintained for the physically ill and infirm alcoholic treatment programs and rehabilitation programs.

Spencer State Hospital operates under the open door policy and approximately 76% of the patients reside on open wards. There are no mechanical restraints employed at the hospital. All forms of psychiatric treatment, such as psychotherapy, electroconvulsive therapy, chemotherapy, milieu therapy, remotivation and group therapy, family counseling, industrial therapy, religious counseling and an active occupational and recreational therapy are utilized at this hospital. A new program, a class in remotivation for patients, has been in effect for several years and has greatly enhanced the hospital therapeutic success.

The Vocational Rehabilitation Center, located on the hospital grounds, offers a new and modern concept in traditional hospital services. Spencer also has a modern dental unit and x-ray departments and offers electrocardiogram and laboratory services.

A camping program, designed to create self-help and provide patient responsibility through outdoor activities, has become one of the outstanding therapeutic programs in the modern treatment of the mentally ill.

An adolescent unit, Opportunity Hall, opened in March, 1972. Located on the second floor of the Clinic Building, Opportunity Hall is a unit for emotionally disturbed adolescents between 13 and 19 years of age. The unit is equipped with a medication and a treatment team in addition to a project director, psychiatric nurse and a social worker. Adolescents who are functioning below the average range of intelligence will be accepted if they have average intellectual potential. The average daily census remains consistently at 22 which is the capacity of the unit.

WELCH EMERGENCY HOSPITAL

(Surgical)

Welch

Acting Clinical Director: Dr. George Salazar, M.D. Acting Superintendent: Miss Doris Kitchen.

(Formerly Welch No. 1 Hospital)

This hospital is situated in the western part of the Town of Welch. It was established by an act of the Legislature in 1899 and was opened to patients in January, 1902.

The institution has three and one-quarter acres of ground. There are eight buildings on the grounds consisting of the main hospital, nurses' home, power and boiler house, quarters for the aides and orderlies, two cottages and one large building and a new modern outpatient clinic.

The main hospital building is two and one-half stories high. The operating, sterilization and supply rooms are on the third floor. On the second floor are the drug room, superintendent's office, director of nurses office, central supply room and fifteen rooms for private patients.

The first floor has two wings; the south wing has five wards for acute cases—obstetrical, surgical and pediatric patients. A modern children's ward was added in 1965. The north wing is currently being remodeled for a maternity unit—a large obstetrical ward with labor room, delivery room and a newborn nursery.

On the first floor of the hospital is also the business office, record room, dining room, kitchen and store rooms. The kitchen and dining room have been remodeled. Examining rooms for the outpatient clinic are also located on the first floor, with an emergency room for ambulance entrance.

A new outpatient clinic has been constructed on the hospital grounds. The building houses the examining rooms for outpatients, central supply and the record room which uses the Problem-Oriented Medical Record System. The System is the only one of its kind in the state.

WESTON STATE HOSPITAL

Weston

Clinical Director: Abul Ali, M.D. Clinical Director—Training Program: Adrian Villarín. Superintendent: Obed Poling. Average daily resident population: 1041.

West Virginia's oldest and largest mental institution, Weston State Hospital, is located in the City of Weston. Although authorized on March 22, 1858, by an act of the Virginia Assembly, opening was delayed by the Civil War until October 22, 1864. Weston continues to serve 29 of West Virginia's 55 counties.

The physical plant is made up of several buildings, including a vocational rehabilitation center and half-way house for the training and rehabilitation of the mentally ill, an alcoholic treatment unit, and a medicare unit. A section of the main hospital building has been isolated from the rest and is designated as the West Virginia Soliders' Home. This is also administered by the hospital staff. Male war veterans are admitted there for treatment. The buildings and outlying camping and recreation land occupy some 616 acres of land in Lewis County.

Clinical services include psychiatry, general medicine, social service, psychology, nursing, dentistry, x-ray, pathology and clinical laboratory and electroencephalography.

Weston was the first state hospital in West Virginia to complete patient rehousing under the geographic unit locations.

A teaching unit for nursing education was established under a special grant and is being used by students from West Virginia Wesleyan, Fairmont State, Alderson-Broadbent, and Salem Colleges. There is also an in-service training program for psychiatric aides and training of psychologists, social workers, and medical students which is carried out in conjunction with West Virginia University and other colleges.

A Behavior Modification Unit was instituted in 1970 under a grant from the Hospital Improvement Program. Through the use of diagnostic testing practices, behavior therapy wards, the teaching unit, and the geographic location and community referral program, the patient population continues to decline.

The hospital staff has continued to be upgraded. Consultant staff consists of specialists and general physicians as well as professors and instructors from nearby colleges.

A cooperative program with West Virginia University has proved beneficial to students and patients. Students spend a full semester in "on-the-job" education and training at the hospital. Working under the supervision of the hospital staff and University professors, students are involved in designing an education program and token economy for the units involved. The ultimate goal of the on-going program is to prepare patients for return to the community.

STATE SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES

WEST VIRGINIA UNIVERSITY

Morgantown 26506

Teacher, student, healer, artist, scientist, grower of food and forest, builder of a better world . . . these are the many faces of West Virginia University. It seeks to reconstruct the past, to understand the present, to glimpse and help create the future. The University's concerns embrace the breadth of life . . . plants and animals, man's health, his polluted environment, his prosperity, his comfort, his humanity.

The 20,000 students that WVU serves each year are young and old . . . from every West Virginia county, the 49 other states, and 50 foreign countries. They are coal miners and industrial workers receiving technical training, company engineers keeping up with the newest technology, 13 to 21 year olds discovering the excitement of new ideas, tomorrow's doctors and engineers, teachers continuing their education, firemen, housewives learning about art and how to become wiser consumers.

WVU's organization into 19 colleges, schools, and divisions indicates the variety of its intellectual life: College of Agriculture and Forestry, College of Arts and Sciences, Center for Extension and Continuing Education, College of Business and Economics, Creative Arts Center, School of Dentistry, College of Engineering, Graduate School, College of Human Resources and Education, School of Journalism, College of Law, School of Medicine, Divisions of Military Science and Air Force Aerospace Studies, College of Mineral and Energy Resources, School of Nursing, School of Pharmacy, School of Physical Education, and School of Social Work.

The most significant development in WVU's recent history has been its emergence as a major regional center for graduate and professional education. More Ph.D., D.M.A., and Ed.D. degrees (673) were awarded from 1970 through 1974 than since the Graduate School was established in 1930. Enrollment in graduate and professional programs increased almost 50 percent from 1968-69 to 1974-75 while undergraduate enrollment rose about 25 percent.

By 1974, WVU had granted 70,979 degrees including 18,457 master's degrees and 2,716 doctorate and professional degrees. There were 38,441 WVU alumni and contributors living in every West Virginia county. More than a fourth of the teachers and administrators in West Virginia's colleges and universities received one or more degrees from WVU. And the University has a significant impact on the state's economy because every time WVU spends a dollar, it generates 59 cents in additional income for West Virginia.

West Virginia University's dramatic growth in facilities has been equaled by few universities of its size in the nation. During the past decade, more than $100 million in new buildings and facilities have been built.

They include the Medical Center, Coliseum and Natatorium, Creative Arts Center, and Mountainlair (the campus activities center) that are considered among the finest facilities of their kind in the nation; engineering and agriculture buildings; $18.4 million in residence halls and apartments; a new complex housing the Division of Forestry, College of Human Resources and Education, and School of Social Work; $4 million in chemistry facilities; and a $3.8 million Law Center.

For West Virginians, the Morgantown campuses have become the key link between their state's past and future. The WVU's Department of History, utilizing the West Virginia Collection in the Library, reconstructs West Virginia's past so that citizens can better understand its present. The Library also publishes books of unusual importance about state history and culture. The WVU Arboretum on the Evansdale Campus is the only place in the state where many of West Virginia's native plants have been brought together in a single location. Some 500 species of trees and other plants can be seen along the Arboretum's hillside trails above the Monongahela River.

The University's Regional Research Institute and the WVU-headquartered West Virginia Geological and Economic Survey provide essential information about the state's economy and natural resources. Research bureaus in business, coal, and government focus on solutions to West Virginia problems. Research in such areas as agriculture, forestry, engineering, education, and the health sciences broadens man's knowledge and makes the state more competitive in seeking new job opportunities in our post-industrial society.

CONCORD COLLEGE

Athens 24712

Concord College is a fully-accredited coeducational liberal arts and teacher education institution. It was founded in 1872 as Concord Normal School. In 1931 the name was changed to Concord State Teachers College and to Concord College in 1943. It is located in the Town of Athens, Mercer County, which is situated near the southern terminus of the West Virginia Turnpike. In addition to this strategic travel location, the mountainous environment (elevation 2,600 feet) provides an ideal year-round climate.

Enrollment for the 1974 fall semester was approximately 1,700 students. There are 120 faculty and professional staff members.

A campus complex composed of 25 buildings valued at $23 million provides an excellent setting for study and recreation. Within this complex, one of the main features is The Oakey Logan Alexander Center for the Creative and Performing Arts which houses the fine arts—art, music, and theater. This impressive $3 million structure consists of two basic multi-level structures—one for the visual arts and the other for theater and music; a third area links the two basic areas together and provides for galleries, lobbies and lounges.

An important new addition to the campus complex is a $3 million health and physical education facility completed in June, 1972. Ten units of faculty housing were completed in 1970.

The college grants the degrees of Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Science in Education, Bachelor of Science in Business Administration, Bachelor of Science in Medical Technology, Bachelor of Science in Social Work, Bachelor of Science in Community Development and Regional Planning, and Regents Bachelor of Arts. Special programs include study in early childhood education, computer science, library science, home economics, health and physical education, and speech and dramatic arts. Pre-professional programs are available for medicine, dentistry, law, the ministry and other professions. The usual undergraduate majors in the arts and sciences and fields for teacher certification are offered. Study abroad is available through the College's membership in the Regional Council for International Education.

The College is fully accredited by the North Central Association and the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education, and it is recognized by the American Association of University Women.

PARKERSBURG COMMUNITY COLLEGE

Parkersburg 26101

Established July 1, 1971, by the West Virginia Board of Regents, Parkersburg Community College became the state's first comprehensive community college. It serves an eight-county area by providing a wide variety of course offerings in college-parallel programs, technical and occupational fields and in community services.

Wood County citizens expressed a need for a two-year college in the area; the State Legislature of West Virginia responded during the 1961 session with legislation authorizing the establishment of branch campuses. Under the provision of that act, and the subsequent action of the Board of Governors of West Virginia University, the Parkersburg Branch of West Virginia University opened its doors in September, 1961, to 104 students. Originally housed in the former Emerson Elementary School, the College now is located on a rural campus on State Rt. 47 near Interstate 77, two miles from the City of Parkersburg. The present college facility, valued at $6.8 million, offers educational opportunities to 4,009 students, served by 95 full-time and 118 part-time faculty members.

The campus facilities were doubled in the 1974-75 academic year by the completion of an addition which provided a spacious Learning Resource Center, an Occupational-Technical Center and additional classrooms.

The College offers a two-year, college-parallel program leading to an Associate in Arts degree; an Association in Applied Science Degree Program, which consists of para-professional and technical courses; a Certificate Program designed to prepare students for careers in less than two years; and a Community Education program for those who wish to enrich their lives through courses without credit. The College is accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools; the National League for Nursing; and the American Dental Association's Council on Dental Education.

WEST VIRGINIA REHABILITATION CENTER

Institute 25112

The full range of services offered the handicapped by the West Virginia Division of Vocational Rehabilitation can be seen under one roof at the West Virginia Rehabilitation Center, Institute. Located 8½ miles west of Charleston and adjacent to West Virginia State College, the Center resembles any other educational campus with an interlocking complex of classrooms, shops, dorms, training centers and recreational areas. Each student must cope with one or more severe disabilities—orthopedic impairments, mental illness, mental retardation, spinal cord injury, blindness, deafness, and more—before he can become employed.

Rehabilitation counselors state-wide arrange admission to the facility for clients in need of intensive vocational evaluation, medical treatment, job training or prevocational adjustment. A staff of some 330 professional and support personnel use a team approach involving physicians, psychologists, therapists, social workers, counselors, teachers and aides. A student may be simultaneously receiving physical therapy and job training; another may be in vocational evaluation and remedial education; a third may be receiving individual mobility and blind adjustment training during a school year break. A capacity enrollment of 400 students enter when class space and their medical condition permit, and graduate when their individual program is completed.

A student may need one or all of the Center's specialized services:

Vocational Evaluation is a series of testing programs that probe a client's abilities and probable limitations, and usually extends for a period of one to two weeks.

Prevocational Adjustment is sometimes needed before specific job training can begin. Students spend half-days in the classroom learning daily living skills, self-care, home-care and social skills. The remainder of the day is spent in the Sheltered Workshop where students acquire good work habits, such as the ability to follow instructions, cooperativeness and basic work skills. The mobility and living adjustment service for the blind stresses independent travel with the long cane along with techniques of everyday living skills such as food preparation and clothing care.

Vocational Training is offered in 24 areas from accounting and auto transmission repair to building service maintenance and radio-TV repair. Classroom work in remedial education, preparation for GED and Civil Service testing is also available.

Rehabilitation Medicine combines the skills of staff specialists with consulting specialists to provide services such as an Optical Aids Clinic, a Spinal Cord Injury Project, a Maxillo-facial Reconstruction Clinic and a superior Physical and Occupational Therapy Department.

Sheltered Workshop provides an exposure to work with a variety of assembly line, small construction, printing and related jobs contracted from both government and industry. Work here is used in both prevocational and training areas.

REHABILITATION HOUSES*Huntington 25701

Halfway between institutionalized care and independent living are the Huntington Rehabilitation Houses, maintained by the West Virginia Division of Vocational Rehabilitation. Here, patients released from state mental hospitals begin their transition back into the community and successful employment.

Located in a quiet residential section of Huntington, the House for Women accommodates twelve residents and two houseparents. The House for Men has a capacity of fifteen, including houseparents.

Some residents are already employed; some are in vocational training or retraining at the Rehabilitation Center in Institute, in local schools and colleges or on-the-job in area businesses. Residents share household duties and practice self-care, including medication, to build confidence and encourage responsibility. A physician from the Huntington State Hospital makes weekly calls.

Adjusting to non-institutional living also means learning wise use of leisure time. An active recreational and social program is often coordinated with the Vocational Rehabilitation Unit at Huntington State Hospital to include patients almost ready for discharge.

DENOMINATIONAL AND PRIVATE SCHOOLS

ALDERSON-BROADDUS COLLEGE

Philippi — 26416

Alderson-Broaddus, a private Christian liberal arts college has as its purpose the uniting of excellence in academic achievement with dedication to service and cultivation of strong faith.

Two institutions were united in 1932 to form Alderson-Broaddus, a college of arts, sciences and special professional and pre-professional programs. The older of the two, Broaddus College, was founded in Winchester, Virginia, in 1871. Broaddus Academy was moved across the Alleghenies to Clarksburg, West Virginia, in 1876. There was no similar institution serving the Clarksburg area, and Broaddus flourished there a few years, but in 1909 was moved to Philippi.

The other institution, Alderson Junior College, was founded at Alderson, West Virginia, in 1901. It remained an active institution there until the 1932 merger.

Today Alderson-Broaddus is the only institution of higher education in West Virginia related to the American Baptist Convention.

The College, with a tradition of effective teaching in the liberal arts and with strong emphasis in humane studies, the Christian faith, music and the fine arts, science and teacher preparation, has in recent years placed decided emphasis on the natural sciences.

In 1945, in cooperation with the Myers Clinic, the first collegiate nursing program and the first radiologic technology program in West Virginia were developed. A medical technology program has been added; and in 1968, a four-year medical science program to prepare the physician's assistant. The medical science major was a national pioneering venture, the first such four-year program in the country. They are related also to Broaddus Hospital on the campus.

A new program was established in 1972 to prepare teachers for early childhood education positions, especially for those of kindergarten age. An Early Childhood Teaching Center has been established on the campus where the Barbour County school system cooperates with the College in operating a model classroom for those specializing in the early childhood area.

Alderson-Broaddus College is fully accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. It is also a member of the Association of American Colleges, the American Council on Education, the Council of Protestant Colleges and Universities, and the Association of Higher Education of the American Baptist Convention. State departments of education have approved the institution for the training of teachers for elementary and secondary schools.

Enriched educational experiences are offered for graduation credit during the vacation terms of the junior and senior years. They include foreign study and travel, co-operative educational programs with Broaddus Hospital and other institutions and with business and industry, independent study, and Christian and humanitarian service.

The present enrollment is around 900 and the total student costs for the 1974-75 year are $3,112. Limited scholarships, unique work opportunities, and loans are available to worthy students.

MORRIS HARVEY COLLEGE*Charleston — 25304

The roots of the College sink deep in the history and traditions of this State. The Southern Methodists, after having lost Marshall Academy during the Civil War, established in 1888, a seminary in Barboursville. This seminary was destined to become Morris Harvey College.

For nearly fifty years, the College served the youth from southern West Virginia and eastern Kentucky. The enrollment was small and the facilities were limited and financial adversarities of the 1930's resulted in the relocation of the College in Charleston.

Today the College is accredited by regional and national associations. Its student body, of more than two thousand, is heterogeneous. The educational program places emphasis on the liberal arts, but provides for teacher education, business and industrial management, chemical technology, structural engineering and nursing. Its range of programs qualifies it as a comprehensive undergraduate college.

The College seeks to keep its academic program responsive to the contemporary student and community needs. Urging the faculty to develop excellence in teaching, it seeks the involvement of students in the life of the College, and the broadening of its relationship with other academic and social institutions.

U. S. ARMY ENGINEER DISTRICT, HUNTINGTON CORPS OF ENGINEERS

502 Eighth Street, Huntington 25721

Congress has delegated to the Corps of Engineers responsibility for the development, construction, operation, and maintenance of navigation facilities, flood control structures, and related improvements, and services for water resources management.

The Civil Works Program of the Corps of Engineers is divided on the basis of watershed drainage areas. The Ohio River drainage basin includes all of West Virginia except the eastern Panhandle, which is in the Potomac River basin. The Huntington District of the Ohio River Division encompasses that part of the Ohio River basin in West Virginia downstream from New Martinsville in Wetzel County. The Pittsburgh District encompasses the upstream remainder of the Ohio River basin, including the basin of the Monongahela River. The Potomac River basin is included in the Baltimore District of the North Atlantic Division.

Responsibility for military construction in West Virginia rests with the U. S. Army Engineer District, Baltimore.

Extension of the Ohio River navigation system in West Virginia presently includes three high lift dams on the Kanawha River and three navigation structures on the Monongahela River. Operation of the former Federal navigation projects on the Little Kanawha and Big Sandy Rivers for commercial navigation has been discontinued and the properties transferred to State or local interests. Navigation is not a feature of the Potomac River in West Virginia.

Improvement of the navigation facilities on the Ohio River includes construction of modern high-lift structures to replace obsolete dams. Eight of these structures are complete. Greenup Locks and Dam, Greenup, Ky. replaced Locks and Dams 27 and 28 in West Virginia and 29 and 30 in Ky. New Cumberland Locks and Dam, New Cumberland, W. Va., replaced Locks and Dams 7, 8, and 9 in West Virginia. Pike Island Locks and Dam, Wheeling, replaced Locks and Dams 10 and 11 in West Virginia. Belleville Locks and Dam, Belleville, W. Va., replaced Locks and Dams Nos. 18, 19, and 20. Racine Locks and Dam, Letart, W. Va., replaced Locks and Dams, 21, 22, and 23. Others completed are Markland Locks and Dam, Warsaw, Ky.; McAlpine Locks and Dam, Louisville, Ky., and Captain Anthony Meldahl Locks and Dam, Chilo, Ohio. Navigation structures now under construction on the Ohio River in West Virginia are: Hannibal Locks and Dam, New Martinsville, W. Va., which will replace Locks and Dams 12, 13, and 14; and Willow Island Locks and Dam, Willow Island, W. Va., which will replace Locks and Dams 15, 16, and 17. Replacement of existing Gallipolis Locks and Dam is under study. West Virginia will benefit from the construction of these modern navigation improvements on the Ohio River. Additional projects are under way on the lower Ohio River:

Modernization of the obsolete navigation structures in the upper reaches of the Monongahela River also is in progress and is essentially complete. Hildebrand, Morgantown, and Opekiska Locks and Dams are complete. Replacement of Lock No. 8, now being studied, would complete modernization of the upper river. Maxwell Locks and Dam, integrated with reconstruction of Dam 4, improves the middle Monongahela in Pennsylvania.

Multipurpose reservoir projects constructed by the Army Engineers within the State include Bluestone Lake on New River at Hinton; Sutton Lake on Elk River at Sutton; Tygart Lake on Tygart Valley River near Grafton; Summersville Lake on Gauley River near Summersville; and East Lynn Lake on East Fork of Twelvepole Creek near Huntington. Reservoirs under construction or to be placed under construction soon include Beech Fork Lake on Twelvepole Creek basin near Huntington; R. D. Bailey Lake on Guyandotte River near Gilbert;

Bloomington Lake on North Branch Potomac River; Stonewall Jackson Lake on West Fork River; and Burnsville Lake on Little Kanawha River. Reservoir projects under design are Leading Creek on Leading Creek, a tributary of the Little Kanawha River; Rowlesburg Lake on Cheat River near Rowlesburg; and West Fork Lake on West Fork of Little Kanawha River.

Local protection projects completed by the Corps of Engineers in West Virginia are located at Parkersburg, Point Pleasant, Huntington, Ceredo-Kenova, Ridgeley, W. Va.-Cumberland, Md. (one project), Buckhannon, Elkins, Princeton, Rainelle, and Williamson. Several completed small flood control projects and snagging and clearing projects have reduced or alleviated flood damage along smaller tributaries of main rivers within the State.

Services provided include those related to flood plain management and disaster relief assistance. The flood plain management services program provides for preparation of flood plain information reports for communities of the State upon their request, and help to any community, agency, or individual in evaluating flood hazards at individual locations.

INLAND WATERWAYS—FEDERAL

(Data furnished by the Department of the Army)

Ohio River—Improvement of the Ohio River for navigation, as authorized by Congress in the River and Harbor Act of 1910, provides for a minimum channel depth of 9 feet in the entire 981 miles of the river by the construction of locks and dams and open channel work. The original system, completed in 1929, and major modifications completed in 1937, resulted in 46 lock and dam structures.

In 1953 a modernization and replacement program was begun which will reduce the total number of navigation projects to 19, providing higher dams, larger locks, and deeper pools. Projects adjoining West Virginia include the pool of Greenup Locks and Dam, completed in 1964, between Kentucky, West Virginia, and Ohio; a proposed improvement of Gallipolis Locks and Dams, near Apple Grove; the Racine Locks and Dam, near Letart, completed for operation in 1970; Belleville Locks and Dam, completed in 1969 at Belleville; Willow Island Locks and Dam, under construction at Willow Island; the Hannibal Locks and Dam, under construction at New Martinsville; Pike Island Locks and Dam, completed in 1965 at Wheeling; and New Cumberland Locks and Dam, completed in 1961 near New Cumberland.

Kanawha River, West Virginia—Three high-lift dams on the Kanawha River and the Gallipolis Dam on the Ohio River provide a minimum channel depth of 9 feet on the Kanawha River for 91 miles, from the mouth to Deepwater. Each Kanawha River dam has twin locks, and the Kanawha Valley Power Company has a hydroelectric plant at each site. The two upstream dams, London and Marmet, were completed in 1934, Winfield Dam in 1937, and Gallipolis Dam on the Ohio River in 1937.

Monongahela River, West Virginia and Pennsylvania—The existing Monongahela navigation system comprises nine locks and dams, affording slack-water navigation from Pittsburgh to above Fairmont, W. Va., a distance of 128.7 miles. The controlling depth is 9 feet and the navigable width varies from 250 feet in the upper reach to practically the full width of the river at the mouth of the river.

Modernization of the Monongahela River navigation structures in the upper reaches of the waterway in West Virginia is nearly complete. Morgantown, Hildebrand, and Opekiska Locks and Dams and modification of Dam 8 have been completed. Proposed replacements for existing Lock 8 and Lock and Dam 7 are now being investigated.

MULTIPLE-PURPOSE LAKES—FEDERAL

(Data furnished by the Department of the Army)

Completed Projects:

Bluestone Lake—Bluestone Lake, located on New River near Hinton, was authorized by Presidential executive order in 1935 and approved by Congress in the Flood Control Acts of 1936 and 1938. Construction of the project was begun early in 1942, suspended in 1944 because of the war emergency, resumed in 1946, and completed for operational purposes in 1949. The dam, of concrete construction, is 165 feet high and 2,048 feet long. The lake regulates the runoff of a drainage area of 4,565 square miles and has a total storage capacity of 631,000 acre-feet. During periods of low and normal flows in New River, the elevation of the lake varies about 4 feet, with a minimum pool 9.5 miles in length and an area of 1,800 acres that accounts for about 30,900 acre-feet of the total storage capacity. The remaining capacity is reserved for the impoundment of floodflows, as required for flood control.

East Lynn Lake—East Lynn Lake, located on East Fork of Twelvepole Creek, was authorized by Congress in the 1938 Flood Control Act. Construction of the dam was completed in 1972. The dam is an earthfill structure with a maximum height of 113 feet and a crest length of 652 feet. The lake provides a maximum capacity of 82,500 acre-feet and controls the runoff from a drainage area of 133 square miles. A minimum pool with a surface area of 823 acres and a capacity of 11,705 acre-feet will be maintained during the winter, while a seasonal pool with a surface area of 1,005 acres and a capacity of 17,100 acre feet will be maintained during the summer. The remaining storage is for flood control.

Summersville Lake—Built between 1960 and 1966, Summersville Lake is situated on Gauley River near Summersville. The dam is a rockfill type, with a maximum height of 390 feet and a top length of 2,280 feet. The drainage area above the dam is 803 sq. miles. It provides a maximum capacity of 390,800 acre-feet of storage for flood water, of which 163,400 acre-feet may be used for low-flow augmentation in the Kanawha River in summer. The summer recreation pool is 13.7 miles long and 2,723 acres in area.

Sutton Lake—Sutton Lake, located on the Elk River near Sutton, was authorized by Congress in the Flood Control Act of 1938. Sealing of mine workings at the site was begun in 1949, but work on the dam was not started until 1956. Construction of the project was completed in 1961. The dam is of concrete, 210 feet high and 1,178 feet long. The lake has a total capacity of 265,300 acre-feet and controls the runoff from a drainage area of 537 square miles. A minimum pool 5.9 miles in length, with a surface area of 270 acres and a capacity of 4,100 acre-feet, is maintained during the winter. A seasonal pool with a maximum length of 14.5 miles, surface area of 1,520 acres, and storage capacity of 60,100 acre-feet is maintained for low-flow augmentation and recreation. The remaining capacity is utilized for flood control storage.

Tygart Lake—Tygart Dam, on Tygart Valley River 2.25 miles upstream from Grafton, was authorized by the Public Works Administration in 1934 and approved by Congress in the River and Harbor Act of 1935. The concrete gravity dam is 1,921 feet in length at the top and rises 230 feet above the riverbed. The structure provides for the gross controlled storage of 287,700 acre-feet of water. It is operated as a unit in the reservoir system for the protection of Pittsburgh and the Ohio River valley. In addition to flood control, Tygart Lake provides for low water discharge regulation by the gradual release of stored spring flood waters during the summer-fall period to assure a river flow of 340 cubic feet per second at Lock and Dam 8 on Monongahela River. Storage of about 100,000 acre-feet of water is allotted for this purpose.

Projects under construction:

Beech Fork Lake—Creation of a lake on Beech Fork of Twelvepole Creek, near Huntington, was authorized by Congress in the Flood Control Act of 1962. Construction is scheduled for completion in 1976. The dam will be earthfill, with a maximum height of 86 feet and a top length of 1,080 feet. The lake will have a maximum capacity of 37,540 acre-feet and will control the runoff from a drainage area of 78 square miles. A minimum pool of 4,200 acre-feet with a surface area of 450 acres will be maintained during the winter. A seasonal pool of 9,180 acre-feet with a surface area of 720 acres will be maintained during the summer season for recreation purposes. The remaining capacity will be utilized for flood control.

Bloomington Lake—The Bloomington Lake project was authorized by Congress in 1962 as a unit of the comprehensive water resource development plan for the Potomac River basin. The damsite is in Mineral County, W. Va. and Garrett County, Md. on North Branch Potomac River about 8 miles upstream from the mouth of Savage River. The dam will be a rolled earth- and rockfill structure with a maximum height of 296 feet and a top length of 2,130 feet. The reservoir will have a capacity of 130,900 acre-feet and will control runoff from a drainage area of 263 square miles. The project will provide low-flow augmentation, flood control, and recreation. Construction was begun in 1971 and is scheduled for completion in 1979. Local interests are required to pay initial water supply costs and provide assurances for (a) payment of future water supply costs, (b) maintenance of water quality standards, and (c) prevention of encroachment in the channel downstream of the project.

Burnsville Lake—Construction of the Burnsville Lake project was begun in the summer of 1972 and completion is scheduled for 1977. The project will control the runoff from a drainage area of 165 square miles. The dam will be a rockfill embankment rising 84.5 feet above the streambed. The top elevation will be 839 feet above sea level, and the crest length 1,400 feet. A perched gated spillway with a crest width of 142 feet and a crest elevation of 792 feet will be located in the left abutment. Outlet works will be located in the spillway section. A minimum pool will be maintained at elevation 776, with a surface area of 550 acres. The seasonal (water quality control) pool will be at elevation 789 and will have a surface area of 968 acres. The flood control pool will be at elevation 825 and will have a capacity ranging from 51,200 acre-feet in summer to 61,300 acre-feet in winter, with a surface area of 1,900 acres.

R. D. Bailey Lake—The R. D. Bailey Lake, started in 1967 and expected to be completed in 1977, is located on Guyandotte River in Wyoming County. It was authorized by Congress in the 1962 Flood Control Act. The dam will be of rock and randomfill, 310 feet high and with a top length of 1,370 feet. The dam will control the runoff from a drainage area of 540 square miles, the lake having a total capacity of 203,700 acre-feet. A minimum pool of 22,000 acre-feet with a surface area of 440 acres will be maintained in the winter months. A seasonal pool for recreation and water quality control having a capacity of 34,000 acre-feet and a surface area of 630 acres will be maintained during the summer. The remaining storage capacity will be used for flood control.

Stonewall Jackson Lake—The Stonewall Jackson Lake project was authorized by the Flood Control Act of 1966 for the purposes of flood control, water quality control, water supply, and recreation. The project, although benefiting primarily the West Fork and upper Monongahela River valleys, will be operated as a unit in the comprehensive plan for flood control in the Ohio River basin; to improve water quality in the West Fork, Monongahela, and Ohio Rivers; to provide storage for water supply for Weston and Clarksburg; and for general and fish and wildlife recreation. Land acquisition and construction were initiated in 1974.

The dam will be located on West Fork River at Brownsville in Lewis County, with the full pool extending upstream to Walkersville and Crawford, also in Lewis County. The dam will be a concrete gravity structure, 620 feet long and rising 95 feet above the streambed.

The maximum summer pool for water quality control, water supply, and recreation will be at elevation 1073 feet above sea level, with a surface area of 2,650 acres. At the full pool elevation of 1082, the project will provide for the gross storage of 74,700 acre-feet of water.

Projects under design:

Panther Creek Lake—A lake on Panther Creek, a tributary of Tug Fork, was authorized by the Flood Control Act of 1965 to provide local flood protection and water quality control in the Tug Fork and Big Sandy River valleys and for recreation and fish and wildlife enhancement. It will serve as a unit in the comprehensive plan for flood control in the Ohio River valley. The dam will be rock filled, with impervious core. The maximum height will be 200 feet and the top length 900 feet. The drainage area above the dam will be 23.6 square miles.

At maximum flood control pool level of 1312 feet the total storage capacity would be 16,880 acre-feet, with a pool area of 288 acres. The minimum pool level would be 1,218 feet, with a capacity of 1,700 acre-feet and a pool area of 60 acres.

Rowlesburg Lake—The Rowlesburg Lake was authorized by the Flood Control Act of 1965 for the purposes of flood control, water quality control, hydroelectric power production, and recreation. The dam will be located on the Cheat River, a tributary of the Monongahela River, at the upstream limits of Rowlesburg. The full pool will extend upstream to Parsons. The dam will be a concrete gravity type structure, 1,695 feet long, rising 271 feet above the streambed. The project will be operated as a unit in the comprehensive plan for flood control in the Ohio River basin: to improve water quality in the Monongahela and Ohio Rivers, to provide storage for hydroelectric power, and for general and fish and wildlife recreation. A pumped-storage installation would produce peaking hydroelectric power.

The maximum summer pool elevation for water quality control, hydroelectric power production, and recreation would be 1601 feet, with a surface area of 7,175 acres. Gross storage would be 831,700 acre-feet at the lake-full pool elevation of 1632.

LOCAL FLOOD PROTECTION PROJECTS

Completed major flood protection projects in West Virginia are ten in number. All of these except at Ridgeley are units in the comprehensive plan for flood control and allied purposes in the Ohio River basin. The local protection projects have been constructed so that, acting alone, they provide a degree of flood protection which in most places is equal to protection against the maximum flood of record in the project localities. Each locality along the Ohio River which has local protective works also receives additional protection from a coordinated system of upstream multiple-purpose reservoirs designed to reduce floodflows on the Ohio River and to contribute to the reduction of floods on the lower Mississippi River.

Completed reservoir and local flood protection projects in West Virginia have already made a major contribution toward reduction of flood damages; flood control benefits from their operation through fiscal year 1974 have aggregated an estimated $502,071,000.

Ohio River Projects—Local protective works have been completed for Ceredo-Kenova, Huntington, Parkersburg, and Point Pleasant. The projects consist of concrete walls and earth levees to prevent entrance of flood waters, pumping stations to discharge sewage and internal drainage during flood periods, and gated openings through the works to permit unobstructed movement of traffic during normal (nonflood) river conditions. Operation and maintenance are local responsibilities.

Buckhannon LPP—A project in the vicinity of Buckhannon completed in 1969 provided channel improvement along Buckhannon River for 4.6 miles.

Elkins LPP—The principal elements are a cutoff channel and dikes, located about 1.5 miles above the city, which divert floodflows from the loop of Tygart Valley River on which Elkins is located. The project was completed in 1949.

Princeton LPP—Principal features of the protection works are 3.9 miles of channel improvement along Brush Creek, construction of one railroad bridge and extension of another, construction of two highway bridges, and 0.3 mile of railroad relocation. The project was completed in 1961.

Rainelle LPP—The project consists of 4.3 miles of channel improvement on Meadow River and Sewell and Boggs Creeks, construction of a new highway bridge, modification of a railway bridge, and modification of sewage and drainage facilities. The project was completed in 1962.

Ridgeley, W. Va. and Cumberland, Md.—Ridgeley, in Mineral County, is located on the south bank of North Branch Potomac River, opposite Cumberland, Md. Protective works for these communities include about 3.3 miles of channel improvements on North Branch and its tributary, Wills Creek, supplemented by a system of earth levees and concrete floodwalls. The project includes three pumping stations with related interior drainage facilities and eight pressure conduits totaling 11,800 feet in length. An industrial water-supply dam, three highway bridges, and a railroad bridge were reconstructed. The project was completed in 1959. Additional channel improvement on North Branch Potomac River was completed in 1964.

Williamson LPP—The business section of Williamson is protected by a project consisting of 2,135 feet of concrete wall along Tug Fork of Big Sandy River, a pump station, and 16 gated openings. The project was completed in 1963.

Local Protection Work under Special Continuing Authority—Small flood control projects under authority provided to the Corps of Engineers by Section 205 of the Flood Control Act of 1948, as amended, include channel improvement work completed along North Branch Potomac River at Blaine and Bayard and along Middle Fork Mud River in the Griffithsville-Yawkey area.

Barboursville Bank Protection Project—The project consisted of repairing and restoring a bank of Guyandotte River in the vicinity of Water Street in Barboursville. The work consisted of placing dumped-rockfill on the right bank of the river for the prevention of erosion, and channel excavation on the opposite bank. Construction was completed in 1965 at a Federal cost of $148,000. Local interests are required to maintain the project.

Projects under the authority provided to the Corps of Engineers to snag and clear streams in the interest of flood control by Section 208 of the Flood Control Act of 1954 include projects completed at Berwind on Dry Fork, a tributary of Tug Fork of Big Sandy River; Bramwell and Montcalm on Bluestone River; Cairo on North Fork Hughes River; Colliers on Harmon Creek; Huntington on Fourpole Creek; Jacksonburg, Pine Grove on Fishing Creek; Jacksonburg, and Smithfield on South Fork Fishing Creek; Richwood on Cherry River; Stonewood and Nutter Fort on Elk Creek; West Union on Middle Island Creek; Weston on Polk Creek and Stonecoal Creek; and Wyatt on Bingamon Creek. Work is approved for Pax on Paint Creek and Ripley on Mill Creek.

UNITED STATES MARINE CORPS

United States Marine Corps activities in West Virginia consist of two organized Marine Corps Reserve Training Centers, one Recruiting Station headquarters and 7 recruiting substations.

The purpose of the Marine Reserve training centers is to facilitate the training programs and mobilization readiness of the Marine Reserve units in the event of mobilization, war or national emergency. Both Marine Reserve units in West Virginia are listed as excellent in their readiness posture. The South Charleston unit (Company A, 4thEngrBn) has been nominated for several national awards for its accomplishment in combining its engineer training with a domestic action program. Through the use of its engineer skills and equipment, Company A has saved State and local governments an estimated $85,000.00 serving over 450,000 visitors and users of the recreational facilities, cultural centers and public land areas.

The Inspector-Instructor staff of each Reserve Unit is assigned to train, assist and inspect the reserve units in meeting established Marine Corps Standards. These active duty marines are also responsible to represent the Marine Corps on appropriate occasions as well as assist Marine dependents in West Virginia while their sponsor is stationed overseas.

The Main Recruiting Station and substations are primarily tasked with selecting and screening qualified volunteers for the United States Marine Corps and Marine Corps Reserve and with processing applicants for officer and NROTC programs.

RANDOLPH

Randolph County was formed from Harrison in 1787 and included all of the present county of Tucker, all of Barbour east of the river, all of Upshur east of Buckhannon River, and a considerable portion of Pocahontas and Webster. It lost territory in 1821 when Pocahontas was formed; again in 1843 when Barbour came into existence; in 1851 it gave up some of its territory to Upshur; five years later 350 square miles were cut off to form Tucker; and another portion was incorporated in Webster County when it was formed in 1860. After all of these losses Randolph still is the largest county in the State. It was named for Edmund Jennings Randolph, Governor of Virginia 1786-

1788. The first white man who settled in what is now West Virginia, built his home on the waters of the Monongahela. In this county occurred the first Indian massacre in the State. From that beginning, the county has been a historical center down to the present.

First 4-H Camp in the world held in this county.

Kumbrabow State Forest and part of the Monongahela National Forest are located in this county.

Fossil Tree Park, in which are found large numbers of fossilized trees, is located a short distance west of Elkins. Southeast of Huttonsville, on White Mountain (elevation over 4,000 feet), the federal forces maintained the highest fortified camp in the War Between the States.

OFFICIAL MUNICIPAL REGISTER

(Corrected to September 1, 1975)

CLASS I, II AND III CITIES

Under the provisions of Chapter 56, Acts of the Legislature, regular session, 1939, municipal corporations are classified by population as follows: Population in excess of 50,000, Class I city; population more than 10,000 and not more than 50,000, Class II city; and population more than 2,000 and not more than 10,000, Class III city. Municipal corporations not included in these classifications are known as towns or villages.

Transition from one to another class of municipal corporation occurs automatically when the requisite population qualification has been met. Population is determined on the basis of the last preceding census taken under the authority of the Congress of the United States or the Legislature of West Virginia. Census of 1970 is used as basis in determining class of cities listed in this Register.

Population figures shown in cities of 1,000 or over are from the 1970 census.

Salem—Harrison County

Zip Code 26426

(Magisterial District: Tenmile).

Incorporated in 1794. Originally named New Salem because the settlers who established the town came in a body from Salem, New Jersey, arriving in the spring of 1792.

The first civilized habitation on the land now occupied by the City of Salem was a hunter's camp established by Nicholas Carpenter in 1785 who used it for a hunting and trapping center. He also used it as a crude hotel for himself and his men who drove cattle from Clarksburg to the Ohio River at Marietta which was the nearest market.

Samuel Fitz Randolph purchased the property on which the village was founded in 1790. Mr. Randolph had started with a caravan of pioneer settlers from Salem, New Jersey, who crossed the mountains in 1789 and made their first stop at Woodbridgetown, Pennsylvania. Mr. Randolph, a number of Davises, some Maxsons, and others came on to what is now Salem, after a two and one-half year trek from the sea coast.

Salem was the first settlement of Seventh Day Baptists west of the mountains. It is now the home of Salem College, founded in 1888, and the Industrial Home for Girls, established in 1898. Glass has been a major industry. It is the birthplace of United States Senator Jennings Randolph and the great writer, Granville Davison Hall, author of Daughter of the Elm, The Rending of Virginia, and many other historical books.

THE AMERICAN FLAG

DESCRIPTION OF THE FLAG

The Flag of the United States of America has 13 horizontal stripes—7 red and 6 white—the red and white stripes alternating, and a union which consists of white stars of five points on a blue field placed in the upper quarter next to the staff and extending to the lower edge of the fourth red stripe from the top. The number of stars is the same as the number of States in the Union. The canton or union now contains 50 stars. On the admission of a State into the Union a star will be added to the union of the Flag, and such addition will take effect on the 4th day of July next succeeding such admission.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

STATE FLAG

Before the design of the present State Flag was officially adopted by the Legislature on March 7, 1929, by Senate Joint Resolution No. 18, West Virginia had been represented by several flags which had proved impractical.

Prominently displayed on the pure white field of today's flag and emblazoned in proper colors is the Coat of Arms, the lower half of which is wreathed by Rhododendron. Across the top, lettered on a ribbon, is the constitutional designation—"State of West Virginia." The white field is bordered on four sides by a strip of blue, and for parade purposes all but the staff side are to be trimmed with gold fringe.

GREAT SEAL OF WEST VIRGINIA

The Great Seal of West Virginia, which also is the Coat of Arms, was adopted by the Legislature on September 26, 1863, and symbolizes the principal pursuits and resources of West Virginia. Described briefly, the obverse side of the Seal bears the legend, "State of West Virginia," together with the motto, "Montani Semper Liberi" (Mountaineers Are Always Free); a farmer stands to the right and a miner to the left of a large ivy-draped rock bearing the date of the state's admission to the Union; in front of the rock are two hunters' rifles upon which rests a Phrygian Cap, or "Cap of Liberty."

The reverse side of the Seal is not in common use today. It was intended to be employed when the Seal was attached to documents by ribbons and suspended in the manner of a medal.

Joseph H. Diss Debar, of Doddridge County, designed the State Seal in 1863 at the request of the first West Virginia Legislature.

STATE SONGS

"THE WEST VIRGINIA HILLS", "THIS IS MY WEST VIRGINIA" and "WEST VIRGINIA, MY HOME SWEET HOME" were designated as the official State Songs of West Virginia, each ranking equally with the others in official status, by House Concurrent Resolution No. 19, adopted by the Legislature on February 28, 1963.

OFFICIAL COLORS

OLD GOLD and BLUE were designated as Official State Colors by Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 20, adopted by the Legislature on March 8, 1963.

STATE DAY

"West Virginia Day"

On January 1, 1863, President Abraham Lincoln approved the Statehood Bill for West Virginia on the condition that it would gradually abolish slavery. West Virginia was proclaimed a State on April 20, 1863, with the bill becoming effective sixty days later on June 20, 1863.

"West Virginia Day" became a legal holiday by Chapter 59, Acts of the Legislature, Regular Session, 1927. (Code 2-2-1)

STATE TREE

The Sugar Maple or ACER SACCHARUM, as it is known scientifically, was made West Virginia's official tree by House Concurrent Resolution No. 12, adopted by the Legislature on March 7, 1949, authorizing a vote by pupils of public schools and civic organizations. It produces an excellent wood for furniture as well as maple syrup. A single tree is 70 to 120 feet high and produces two to three pounds of sugar when "sugared off"; has a five-lobed leaf and produces a small wing-shaped pod.

STATE BIRD

The Cardinal or RICHMONDENA CARDINALIS, as it is known scientifically, was made West Virginia's official bird by House Concurrent Resolution No. 12, adopted by the Legislature on March 7, 1949, authorizing a vote by pupils of public schools and other civic organizations. The male of the species is a rich scarlet with a mask and shading of black, while the young birds and females are a less brilliant color. The adult bird measures approximately eight inches long. It can be found from New York State to the Gulf of Mexico and as far west as Oklahoma.

STATE FLOWER

The RHODODENDRON MAXIMUM or "Big Laurel" was made the official State Flower of West Virginia by House Joint Resolution No. 19, adopted by the Legislature on January 29, 1903, following a recommendation by the Governor and a vote by the pupils of public schools. It is a shrub of the heath family and may be recognized by its large evergreen leaves and delicate pale pink or white bloom, mottled with either red or yellow flecks.

STATE ANIMAL

The BLACK BEAR or EUARCTOS AMERICANUS was selected as official state animal of West Virginia by a poll of students, teachers and sportsmen conducted by the Department of Natural Resources in 1954-55 and officially adopted by the Legislature, Regular Session 1973, by House Concurrent Resolution No. 6. Only species of bear found in the State. While commonly referred to as the "black bear" its coloring is actually deeply tinted with brown. Its habitat in the State is primarily in the eastern mountain region. A litter usually consists of one or two cubs, rarely three, each weighing about eight ounces at birth. The adult reaches an average maximum weight of 250 pounds.

STATE FRUIT

WEST VIRGINIA: A MINIATURE HISTORY*By: Otis K. Rice*Chairman, Division of Humanities*West Virginia Institute of Technology*Prehistoric Times

The history of West Virginia very properly begins with its geography. With an area of only 24,181 square miles, West Virginia is relatively small and ranks forty-first among the states in size.* Its history, perhaps more than that of any other state, has been shaped by the Appalachian Highlands and their subdivisions. The Eastern Panhandle, consisting of about 3,500 square miles in the Potomac River watershed, is in the Valley and Ridge Province, a series of alternating ridges and valleys running generally in a northeasterly-southwesterly direction. The remainder of the state is part of the Allegheny Plateau, a mountainous or hilly region which slopes to the west and drains into the Ohio River. The mean elevation of West Virginia is 1,500 feet, the highest of any state east of the Mississippi River. With lofty mountains, winding rivers, and picturesque valleys, West Virginia is the scenic jewel of the Appalachians.

Nature lavished her bounties upon West Virginia. Forest-clad hills once abounded in priceless timber, including the finest varieties of oak, poplar, maple, cherry, walnut, and chestnut and stately pines, hemlocks, and spruces. Here roamed the deer, elk, and bear; here was a natural habitat of squirrels, raccoons, foxes, and other animals valued for their meat or their fur; and here nested the wild turkey, ruffed grouse, and other edible fowl. From the forests also came wild fruits, nuts, berries, mast for livestock, building materials, and roots and herbs with either genuine or reputed medicinal value. In the valleys herds of buffalo might be seen grazing, and in the rivers and smaller streams fish and other water animals were found in abundance.

Although the first white visitors found this wilderness Eden almost deserted, there is ample evidence that Indians once inhabited nearly all parts of West Virginia, in many cases for prolonged periods of time. Numerous earthworks, including scores of mounds and several ancient walls, as well as thousands of lesser artifacts, serve as tangible reminders of extensive occupation by prehistoric men. At Moundsville is the famed Grave Creek Mound, originally 69 feet high and 295 feet in circumference at its base, making it the largest earth mound east of the Mississippi River. Archaeological excavations at St. Albans, for example, have revealed that Indians lived there at least eight thousand years ago. Careful study of their village sites has also shown that many of the Indians left West Virginia not long before the arrival of the white men. The most plausible explanation for their departure is that they were pushed out by the powerful Iroquois, who by the mid-seventeenth century had brought many of the tribes of the Ohio Valley under their domination. The Indians who had lived in West Virginia, however, continued to visit the state to hunt and make salt, and a few scattered villages also remained as testimony that the dispossessed tribes had not surrendered their claims willingly to their conquerors.

Explorations and Early Settlements

Until about the end of the third quarter of the seventeenth century West Virginia soil lay untrampled by the feet of Europeans. Impelled by a sense of curiosity, the urge to adventure, a hope of discovering a water passage to the Pacific, and, above all, a desire to expand an increasingly remunerative fur trade, Virginians then began to probe the unknown West. In 1670 John Lederer scaled the Blue Ridge and gazed upon the Shenandoah Valley. In 1671 Thomas Batts and Robert Fallam chanced upon the westward-flowing New River and followed it to the Virginia-West Virginia border. Their discovery, which gave England an important basis for claiming the Ohio Valley, must have sent a tingle of anticipation through frontier Virginia. Two years later young Gabriel Arthur, a member of an expedition under Captain James Needham, was left with the Cherokee or Yuchi Indians and accompanied a party of their warriors to the Shawnee country in Ohio by way of a trail which led through the Kanawha Valley.

By the early eighteenth century the interest of Virginia in the West centered around the desire for land for settlements and speculative purposes. In 1716 Governor Alexander Spotswood led an expedition of about fifty gentlemen to the banks of the Shenandoah River, along which were some of the most attractive farmlands in America. As a means of providing a buffer between the increasing power of France in the Ohio Valley and her own valuable Piedmont plantations, Virginia began about 1730 to encourage the occupation of the Valley of Virginia by offering speculators one thousand acres of land for each family they would bring into the area. Because they were required to seat families from outside Virginia, the speculators drew large numbers of immigrants from the Germans and Scotch-Irish who were pouring into Pennsylvania and from Europe itself. Most of the Germans settled in the northern part of the Valley of Virginia and in the Eastern Panhandle of West Virginia, while the Scotch-Irish moved to the southern portions of the Valley and then spilled over the mountains into the Greenbrier section of West Virginia.

An English nobleman, Thomas, the Sixth Lord Fairfax, who had inherited a vast tract between the Potomac and Rappahannock rivers, challenged the grants that had been made by Virginia authorities. After much litigation, a decision was made in 1745 upholding the rights of Lord Fairfax, who agreed to recognize grants already made by Virginia. Nevertheless, this dispensation of the dispute left most of the Potomac section of West Virginia to the Englishman, and some of the most prominent families of the area acquired their lands from Lord Fairfax.

Although tradition credits Morgan Morgan, a Welshman living in Delaware, with the first settlement in West Virginia, there is really no way of knowing for certain who was the original settler in the state. There are intriguing suggestions that a settlement might have existed on the Potomac by 1719, seven years before the earliest, and, incidentally, erroneous, date once assigned to Morgan's arrival. Although there may have been a few scattered habitations on West Virginia soil before then, certainly there was no general or sustained effort at settlement before about 1730, when legislation encouraged migration on a scale sufficient to give the protection of numbers to pioneers on a remote and isolated frontier. Settlements expanded rapidly and by the outbreak of the French and Indian War in 1754 several thousand persons were living in West Virginia, most of them on the waters of the Potomac, particularly the section between the Shenandoah and South Branch rivers, and a few on the Greenbrier River.

Victory Over the French and the Indians

For nearly a quarter of a century the West Virginia pioneers lived in peace, but their tranquil lives were soon disturbed by international rivalries which threatened all that they held dear. After 1748 tensions between England and France, fed by a great contest for empire, heightened. One of the focal points of friction was the Ohio Valley, which included most of West Virginia. Both nations claimed the region on the basis of discovery, fur-trading operations, and settlement. France sought to add strength to her claims by contracting firm alliances with the Ohio Valley Indian tribes, driving out the English fur traders, and drawing a ring around English settlements by constructing forts on the upper Ohio. Virginia, taking upon herself the burdens of the British Empire, countered French moves by encouraging settlement west of the Allegheny Mountains on terms similar to those which had been so successful in populating the Valley of Virginia. Of importance to the latter efforts were the activities of land speculation organizations such as the Ohio Company of Virginia, the Loyal Company, and the Greenbrier Company, all of which had interests in West Virginia.

The first serious clash between the two ancient antagonists occurred at the Forks of the Ohio, or present Pittsburgh, which both considered the key to control of the Ohio Valley. In the spring of 1754 a powerful French force drove out a party of Virginians engaged in building a fort there and began construction of their own post, known as Fort Duquesne. Shortly afterward the French defeated Virginia militia under George Washington at Great Meadows and gained undisputed control of the upper Ohio. Convinced that the conflict had assumed imperial proportions, Governor Robert Dinwiddie appealed to England for aid. The English Government responded by dispatching General Edward Braddock and British Regulars to America. Braddock's campaign to force the French from the Forks of the Ohio ended in unmitigated disaster. During the closing months of 1755 the American colonies faced unprecedented danger, and the settlements in West Virginia seemed on the verge of complete collapse.

For the next four years West Virginia pioneers endured undreamed of horrors in a relentless war with the French and their Indian allies. The enemy entirely wiped out the Greenbrier settlements and forced hundreds of residents of the upper Potomac region to abandon their homes. In 1758 an army under General John Forbes drove the French from the Forks of the Ohio, and the danger to the West Virginia pioneers subsided. In 1763 the war came to a close and, by the terms of the Treaty of Paris, France gave up her claim to the Ohio Valley. Two other events of that year, however, warned prospective settlers that any advance into the trans-Allegheny regions would be at best premature. A major Indian uprising under Pontiac, an Ottawa chief, aimed at extermination of the English menace to the Ohio Valley tribes, and a royal proclamation forbade any settlement beyond the crests of the mountains.

Not until 1768 was most of West Virginia opened to settlement. In that year the Cherokees and the Iroquois signed the treaties of Hard Labor and Fort Stanwix, respectively, by which they gave up claims to lands now in West Virginia. Beginning in the spring of 1769 and continuing until 1777, the darkest year of the Revolutionary War, hundreds of pioneers streamed across the Alleghenies. They took up lands in the Monongahela Valley, including the Cheat, Tygart Valley, and West Fork regions; along the upper Ohio and its tributaries; in the Greenbrier Valley; along the Kanawha; and at numerous intervening places.

Even as the advance of settlement accelerated, war clouds again appeared on the horizon. The first danger arose from the Shawnee Indians, whose claims to lands west of the Alleghenies had been ignored in the treaties of Hard Labor and Fort Stanwix. As settlers swarmed across the mountains and into Kentucky, which had some of the choice hunting grounds of the Shawnees, the Indians prepared to resist. In the spring of 1774 numerous incidents broke the peace which had until then generally prevailed between the pioneers and the Indians. Perhaps the most unfortunate one was the killing of relatives and friends of Logan, a friendly Mingo chief, at the mouth of Yellow Creek. In the wake of this unprovoked attack by irresponsible whites, the Indians fell upon many ill-protected settlements of the backcountry, bringing with them death and destruction.

As the situation on the frontiers deteriorated, Lord Dunmore, the royal governor of Virginia, laid plans for an expedition that would crush Indian power. Proving himself a friend and champion of land speculators and prospective settlers who aspired to nothing less than destruction of all Indian claims to trans-Allegheny lands, Dunmore gathered a large army, which moved into the Indian country in two columns. The northern wing, commanded by the governor himself, consisted of over a thousand men drawn primarily from the Potomac and Monongahela valleys. It descended the Ohio from Fort Pitt. The southern wing, under Andrew Lewis, held its rendezvous at Camp Union, or Lewisburg, and moved overland by way of the Kanawha Valley. The two segments of Dunmore's army were to unite on the Ohio.

On October 10, 1774, an army of perhaps a thousand warriors under Cornstalk, the Shawnee chief, launched a surprise attack upon Lewis's force of some 1,100 men while it was encamped at Point Pleasant. Throughout the day the battle raged, but as dark came on the weary Indians, believing that Lewis was receiving reinforcements, withdrew and returned to their own side of the Ohio River. Almost immediately they asked Lord Dunmore for peace terms. The governor thereupon gave up his plan for a thrust of the combined armies into the Indian country and concluded the Treaty of Camp Charlotte with the subdued tribes. The Indians agreed not to hunt south of the Ohio River, to refrain from molesting settlers and others traveling on the river, to return slaves, horses, and other valuables taken in their raids, and to give hostages as surety for their good behavior.

The battle of Point Pleasant was by no means the first battle of the American Revolution, as some writers have claimed. It was, however, of major importance in that the strength displayed by the Virginia militia so impressed the Indians that most of the tribes took a neutral position during the first two years of war between England and the American colonies. During that time settlers continued to take up lands west of the mountains, with the result that when the war did begin to assume serious proportions in the West the frontiers were in a much better position to withstand attack.

West Virginia and the Revolutionary War

Although West Virginians were among the first patriots to join Washington's army at Cambridge, Massachusetts, and served in nearly all major engagements of the war, for most of them the military phases of the Revolution assumed the character of a continuing conflict with the Indians, who now had British support and leadership. One of the first serious blows to fall upon the western country occurred at Fort Henry at Wheeling. With Fort Pitt and Fort Randolph, the latter at Point Pleasant, Fort Henry occupied a key position in the outer ring of Virginia's defenses on the upper Ohio. In September, 1777, about two hundred British and Indians lured the militia at Fort Henry outside its walls and killed twenty-three of them. Shortly afterward a reconnoitering party under Captain William Foreman was cut to pieces in a surprise attack at McMechen's Narrows, between Wheeling and Moundsville. Later that fall suspicious militia at Fort Randolph killed Cornstalk, his son, and a few other Indians who were visiting that post on an allegedly peaceful mission. Their precipitate action may have been partly responsible for unsuccessful attacks by the Indians upon Fort Randolph and Fort Donnally, an outpost in the Greenbrier region, early the following year.

Throughout the remainder of the war West Virginia settlers lived under the shadow of death and destruction at the hands of the British and their Indian allies. The danger which they faced was momentarily alleviated by the successes of George Rogers Clark in the Illinois country, but both the pioneers and Clark knew that complete relief from their troubles could come only with the capture of Detroit, the seat of British power in the West. Yet, despite all of Clark's efforts, he was never able to organize an expedition against Detroit, largely because the militia were unwilling to leave their families and homes exposed to attack while they were absent in a campaign, the success of which was highly doubtful.

The surrender of Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown in 1781, which brought hostilities to a close in most parts of the country, afforded no respite to the frontiers, where attacks continued throughout most of 1782. One of the last of the major attacks in the West was made against Fort Henry in September, 1782, by about three hundred British and Indians under Joseph Brant, the Mohawk chief. During the attack young Betty Zane, according to unsupported legend, saved the fort by dashing to her brother's house for gunpowder for defenders so hard pressed that they could not spare a single man.

Life in the Post-Revolutionary Era

Once the Revolutionary War was over, settlers again crossed the Alleghenies in great numbers. Yet, for several reasons West Virginia lagged far behind regions farther west, such as Kentucky and Ohio, in her population growth. Foremost, perhaps, was the exceedingly mountainous character and consequent inaccessibility of much of her land. The two great arteries of internal migration in the east central United States, the Valley of Virginia and the Ohio River, fed their streams of settlers to other areas, the first to Kentucky and Tennessee by way of Cumberland Gap and the latter to the rich farmlands farther down the Ohio.

Also contributing to the relatively slow growth of population in much of trans-Allegheny West Virginia was the cumbersome land system of Virginia, which produced overlapping claims and confused titles. This system lay at the root of an absentee ownership of land, which was fastened upon West Virginia half a century before its separation from Virginia and which has given it a semi-colonial economic condition throughout its existence as a political entity.

Pioneers of West Virginia, who made their way into the mountains in spite of natural obstacles and uncertain land titles, were markedly different from residents of eastern Virginia. Unlike the latter, who were largely English in origin, they represented several nationalities, chief of which were Scotch-Irish, German, and English, with sprinklings of Welsh, Dutch, French, and others. They or their forebears were as likely to have resided in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, or Maryland as in eastern Virginia before their removal to West Virginia. Few sentimental ties, therefore, bound them to their compatriots east of the mountains. Socially and culturally they had or developed many characteristics distinctly their own.

Among the more striking differences were those of religion. Throughout the colonial era the Anglican Church had been the established religious institution in Virginia. Beginning about 1730, however, the need for settlers in the backcountry induced Virginia authorities to make concessions to members of dissenting sects who settled there. Equally significant was the influence of the Great Awakening, a religious revival which began in New England about 1720 and became a profound influence in Virginia during the Revolutionary War era. With its emphasis upon evangelistic activity, emotionalism, and personal religious experience, the revival swept western Virginia like a forest fire. Most of the original West Virginia pioneers were Presbyterians, Quakers, German Reformed, Lutherans, and Anglicans, but they received little attention from their church authorities, and their religious affiliations crumbled under the impact of the Great Awakening.

Out of the religious upheaval the Methodists and Baptists gained thousands of converts and became the dominant elements in the state. Presbyterianism retained some of its strength, particularly in heavily Scotch-Irish areas, but the Protestant Episcopal Church, the successor of the Anglican Church, was seldom strong outside the Eastern Panhandle or some of the larger towns. Not until after the Civil War, when the New Immigration brought to the state large numbers of southern and eastern Europeans, did the Catholic Church begin to show strength in the state. Thus, almost simultaneously with the first great advance of settlement into the Allegheny regions the religious character of West Virginia took on a strong fundamentalism.

The Rise of A Nationalistic Spirit

Differences in geographical conditions, ethnic and national backgrounds, and religious outlook between eastern and western Virginia were accentuated by diverging economic interests. Tidewater and Piedmont Virginia had early developed a plantation economy based upon the cultivation of tobacco and the employment of slave labor. The system gave rise to a planter aristocracy, who controlled the political life of Virginia, but not without some sense of noblesse oblige, and who set the social tone. On the other hand, farmers of mountainous West Virginia, where arable land was at a premium, practiced a diversified agriculture and, except for a few areas, such as the Eastern Panhandle and the Greenbrier region, generally found slavery unprofitable.

Nature herself, however, decreed that economic differences between eastern and western Virginia would reach deeper than dissimilar systems of agriculture. In endowing West Virginia with vast resources of timber, salt, coal, oil, gas, iron ore, clays, and silica sands, she pointed the state toward industrialization. Effective utilization of these resources, however, required adequate transportation by both land and water, investment capital, banking facilities, supplies of skilled and unskilled labor, and benevolent legislation, all of which were rather conspicuously lacking and little appreciated by the planter-dominated General Assembly of Virginia. Thwarted in what they perceived as their real hope for the future, West Virginians grew increasingly dissatisfied with their state government.

Displeasure with state policies and practices, interesting enough, was paralleled by a steadily growing approbation of the federal government. For West Virginians, the federal government scored a genuine triumph when General Anthony Wayne defeated northwestern Indian tribes at the battle of Fallen Timbers in 1794 and put an end to devastating attacks from which the pioneers had had no real respite since the French and Indian War, some forty years before. On the heels of Wayne's victory, the new government under George Washington concluded Jay's Treaty with England. The promised British withdrawal from trading posts which they yet retained in the Northwest signalled an end to their anti-American influence with the Indians of the region.

Following closely upon these successes was Pinckney's Treaty by which Spain provided advantages to American traffic on the Mississippi River and held forth the promise of significant economic blessings for isolated Allegheny pioneers. The Louisiana Purchase in 1803, which clinched the economic gains secured by Pinckney's Treaty, and the completion of the National Road to Wheeling in 1818 also served as tangible reminders of the bounties of a federal government concerned with the needs of its citizens. These early experiences accustomed West Virginians to federal largesse and implanted an attitude not yet entirely abandoned.

Industrial Beginnings

Although isolated families were forced from the time of the first settlements to engage in simple home manufactures for many of their basic needs, commercial enterprises in West Virginia received their first impetus from the War of 1812 and its antecedent events. During these years disruption of normal trade relations deprived Americans of imports of manufactured goods and forced them to undertake domestic enterprises. One industry lifted to regional, if not national, importance was the manufacture of salt. First produced commercially in the state in 1797 when Elisha Brooks constructed a furnace at Malden, the industry centered in the Kanawha Valley. Its peak year came in 1846, when 3,224,786 bushels of salt were produced. Saltmaking gave rise to several ancillary industries, including flatboat-building, coal-mining, barrel-making, and river transportation. In addition to changes which it wrought in economic life, the salt industry also transformed the society of the Kanawha Valley. A population principally of yeoman farmers now developed a nouveau riches class, whose wealth rested upon salt. Industry also drew sizeable landless laboring and Negro slave elements.

Meanwhile, in the northern part of the state the manufacture of iron and iron products began to assume importance. Perhaps the first iron furnace in trans-Allegheny West Virginia was built on King's Creek, near Weirton, in 1794 by Peter Tarr. The Jackson Iron Works on Cheat River gained an enviable reputation for the high quality of its products. More and more, however, Wheeling began to take first place among the state's iron manufacturing centers. Also reflecting the importance of iron ore as a resource was the establishment of the federal arsenal at Harpers Ferry at the suggestion of President Washington.

Coal mining remained in its infancy prior to the Civil War. Although residents of nearly every section of the state mined some coal for personal use as they depleted near-by forests of their timber, commercial production was confined to the Monongahela, upper Ohio, and Kanawha valleys. Much of the coal mined in the Monongahela and upper Ohio valleys was used in local iron manufacturing establishments. Coal produced in the Kanawha Valley was consumed at the salt furnaces, which in 1817 began to convert from wood, which had until then been used as a fuel. Perhaps the most exciting event in the pre-Civil War coal industry in the Kanawha Valley was the discovery of a great seam of cannel coal at Cannelton about 1848. Subsequent discoveries at Peytona on Coal River, at Mill Creek on Elk River, and on Paint Creek, led to a cannel-coal boom. From cannel coal, an extremely rare variety, were manufactured illuminating and lubricating oils, for which processing plants were established at most of the Kanawha Valley mines, with the exception of those on Coal River.

Several other industries flourished in West Virginia before the Civil War. Morgantown, Wheeling, and Wellsburg were important centers for the manufacture of pottery. The latter two towns also produced several varieties of glass. Agriculturally-related industries included the manufacture of textiles, which expanded with the introduction of Merino sheep; the milling industry, which became increasingly important in the Northern and Eastern panhandles; and distilling, which consumed a substantial part of the corn and rye of pioneer farmers.

Of utmost importance to farmers and budding industries of northern West Virginia was the completion of the National Road from Cumberland, Maryland, to Wheeling in 1818 by the federal government. Contemporary accounts vividly describe the economic transformation that occurred along its route and deep into the hinterland. Within another generation Virginia had completed three other major east-west highways, including the Northwestern, Staunton and Parkersburg, and James River and Kanawha turnpikes. Several dozen smaller highways fed into these arterial routes. Never was the condition of most of the roads satisfactory for isolated West Virginians. Moreover, with only the Coal River improved to the extent that it could carry heavy flatboats at all seasons, the rivers of West Virginia were even less satisfactory for extensive navigation.

Antebellum Cultural Life

The mountainous terrain of most of West Virginia and the inadequate transportation facilities fostered a particularism that sometimes compounded the sectional differences between eastern and western Virginia. Residents of isolated sections of the state at the time of the Civil War lived very much as had their ancestors who migrated into the mountains two or three generations earlier. Indeed, cultural attributes, including religious outlook, behavior and mores, attitudes toward life, forms of recreation, and speech patterns, persisted in many mountainous areas until the twentieth century.

So much has been written about the negative aspects of Appalachian culture in recent years that it might be supposed that residents of West Virginia had no interest in educational and cultural matters. Admittedly, attainments were often at a low level, but the state was not unaffected by educational and cultural stirrings during the antebellum era. Before the war the typical school was operated on a subscription basis, with parents who could afford to do so providing tuition for their children. After 1810 the Literary Fund of Virginia paid tuition charges for children of indigent parents. Yet poverty, excessive distances from a school, the need for children to work at home, and the lack of appreciation for formal education combined with an often critical shortage of qualified teachers to deprive hundreds of children of an opportunity for schooling.

In 1829 Monroe became the first county in present West Virginia to set up a district free school system under legislation enacted by the General Assembly of Virginia. The first free public school in the county was established at Sinks Grove. The new system placed a greater tax burden upon counties choosing to adopt it, and Monroe abandoned it after a few years. By the time of the Civil War some of the more prosperous counties of West Virginia, including Kanawha, Jefferson, and Ohio, had accepted the district free school plan.

Education beyond the common school rested with academies, which offered instruction in numerous subjects, such as Latin, Greek, and other languages, English grammar, mathematics, some sciences, and practical subjects such as surveying. The first academy in West Virginia was founded at Shepherdstown between 1783 and 1787. Randolph Academy, established by the Virginia General Assembly at Clarksburg in 1787, was expected to develop into a college for the Allegheny region and to serve the people in much the same manner that William and Mary College and Transylvania College met the needs of their respective areas. Most of the academies of West Virginia were in the northern and eastern parts of the state at such towns as Shepherdstown, Charles Town, Martinsburg, Morgantown, Clarksburg, Romney, Wheeling, Wellsburg, and Bethany. Important ones in the southern part of the state were at Lewisburg, Charleston, and Huntington. Like the subscription school, the academy was a middle class institution, but its impact was felt by all segments of the population.

Higher education was virtually non-existent in most of West Virginia prior to the Civil War. Undoubtedly, the healthiest institution was Bethany College, founded in 1840 by Alexander Campbell, the eminent theologian and a father of the Disciples of Christ Church. Rector College, established at Pruntytown in 1838 by the Baptists, survived only a few years.

Other important educational forces in West Virginia included newspapers, literary societies, and libraries. The first newspaper in West Virginia, the Potowmac Guardian, was founded at Shepherdstown in 1790 by Nathaniel Willis, a veteran of the Boston Tea Party and a staunch Jeffersonian. Before 1830 one or more newspapers had been established at Shepherdstown, Martinsburg, Charles Town, Morgantown, Clarksburg, Wheeling, Wellsburg, Charleston, Harpers Ferry, Weston, Lewisburg, Bethany, and Romney. Wheeling became an important center for the publication of school textbooks. At Bethany, one of the most noted religious publication centers in the United States, Alexander Campbell produced the widely circulated periodicals, the Christian Baptist and the Millennial Harbinger, as well as dozens of religious tracts. Two works of enduring historical value were published in antebellum West Virginia. They were Joseph Doddridge's famed Notes on the Settlement and Indian Wars of the Western Parts of Virginia and Pennsylvania, printed at Wellsburg in 1823, and Alexander Scott Withers' Chronicles of Border Warfare, printed at Clarksburg in 1831.

The Struggle for Constitutional Reform

As West Virginians viewed the disparity between their natural resources and their economic development and the inadequacy of their educational opportunities, they became increasingly convinced that the solutions to their problems lay in the political arena. With typical nineteenth-century faith in the power of the franchise and eligibility for political office, they came to the conclusion that they could reverse the trends in their region if they could have a substantial voice in the state's legislative halls and could control local political offices. Somehow the enormous power of slaveholding planters from the Tidewater and Piedmont must be broken. This determination was not based upon any hatred of slavery but simply upon the belief that the planter aristocracy was not sufficiently concerned about western matters.

West Virginians began their agitation for political reforms almost immediately after the War of 1812. It was no mere coincidence that their demands came at a time of accelerated industrial growth. After years of refusing to authorize a constitutional convention, which might bring about some of the changes for which the West was calling, the General Assembly relented. In the ensuing Constitutional Convention of 1829-1830 westerners battled for the Jacksonian concept of universal white manhood suffrage, representation in the legislature on the basis of white population, and popular election of county officials. They hoped to break the preponderance of Tidewater and Piedmont power in the General Assembly and to end the self-perpetuating system of choosing members of the county courts. Should their goals be accomplished, they envisioned a day when free public schools, essential internal improvements, and other benevolent legislation would transform their backward region into a flourishing and prosperous section of the Commonwealth.

Western hopes undoubtedly soared as the delegates to the convention were selected. Perhaps no state has ever assembled such an array of talent and distinction as Virginia summoned forth on that occasion. Among the delegates were two distinguished former presidents of the United States, James Madison and James Monroe, and a future president, John Tyler; the Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, the eminent John Marshall; several United States senators, congressmen, and presidential cabinet members; and numerous other men whose statesmanlike qualities were known or soon would be known. From West Virginia came Alexander Campbell, the noted religious and educational leader, Philip Doddridge, Edwin S. Duncan, Charles S. Morgan, and Lewis Summers. Such were the tensions between East and West, however, that the abilities of even these leaders were insufficient to overcome the sectional differences. The convention ended without substantial concessions to the West and left a legacy of bitterness and defeat, with numerous calls for separation of the western counties from the Old Dominion.

For twenty years West Virginians rankled under a system which left control of the state in the hands of the planter aristocracy. In 1850-1851 a constitutional reform convention granted universal white manhood suffrage, representation in the House of Delegates on the basis of white population, with prospects for extension of the principle to the Senate, and an end to the old practice of multiple voting. These political gains, greeted with joy in the West, proved illusory. They were purchased at the expense of economic concessions in the form of a constitutional tax structure highly favorable to slaveholders and with constitutional restrictions upon the power of the legislature to use public funds for some of the very purposes so greatly desired by the West. Within a few years, western residents were again highly dissatisfied and many despaired of genuine relief for their situation.

West Virginia and the Disruption of the Union

Although West Virginians were preoccupied with the ordinary requirements of earning a living, their simple social diversions, and political affairs of a state and local nature, they were by no means oblivious to national events and issues. The slavery question, which between 1830 and 1860 tore at the fabric of the nation, did not leave them untouched. A Kanawha Valley native, Henry Ruffner, who later served as president of Washington College, was the author of a famous pamphlet which blamed many of the economic and social ills faced by Virginia upon slavery and called for emancipation of slaves west of the mountains.

Perhaps the most incendiary of all events connected with the slavery issue took place on West Virginia soil, with the seizure of the federal arsenal at Harpers Ferry in 1859 by the fiery Abolitionist, John Brown. His plan for arming the slaves of northern Virginia and fomenting a general uprising, together with the secretiveness with which his scheme was laid and carried out, threw the South into a panic. Some historians contend that if the Civil War was inevitable, John Brown's attack at Harpers Ferry may have been the point of no return.

As the nation sped toward a climax with respect to the seemingly irreconcilable differences between North and South, West Virginians generally continued their historic attachment to the Union. Probably most of them were appalled when South Carolina declared herself out of the Union and when six other states followed her example. They must have been heartened, however, when a convention, assembled early in 1861 to deliberate the course of the Old Dominion, found men of moderate views clearly in the majority.

In the wake of the firing upon Fort Sumter and President Abraham Lincoln's call for volunteers, sentiment in the Virginia convention shifted drastically. Many delegates who had opposed secession now just as vigorously opposed the president's intention to use the coercive powers of the federal government against a state. When the question of Virginia's position came to a vote, therefore, they cast their ballots in favor of joining the newly-formed Confederate States of America. By a vote of 88 to 55 the convention repealed the ordinances by which Virginia had ratified the United States Constitution in 1788 and reclaimed full sovereignty for the state. Shortly afterward, Virginia sent former president, John Tyler, to Montgomery, Alabama, to conclude a treaty whereby Virginia would enter the Confederacy.

Of the forty-seven delegates from present West Virginia, thirty-two, or slightly more than two-thirds, voted against leaving the Union. On April 20, twenty-two of them met in the Powhatan Hotel in Richmond and decided to return to their homes. There they would endeavor to arouse popular opinion against the action of the convention in the hope that it would be repudiated in the coming referendum. Leading the pro-Union sentiment was John S. Carlile of Harrison County. Carlile organized a large mass meeting, which was held at Clarksburg on April 22, 1861. Its members roundly condemned the decision of the Virginia convention and called upon the people of northwestern Virginia to send their "wisest, best and discreetest" men to Wheeling on May 13 to consider a course of action.

The First Wheeling Convention, assembled in response to the call from Clarksburg, was made up of 426 members representing twenty-seven counties. Many were elected irregularly, and some were self-appointed. Carlile favored proclaiming a new state at once and including only counties west of the Allegheny Mountains. More moderate members opposed such precipitate action and urged that another convention be held after the people of Virginia had voted on the Virginia secession ordinance. The moderates had their way, and the next meeting was set for June 11.

On the day appointed the Second Wheeling Convention assembled, with delegates representing thirty-four counties. In a "Declaration of Rights," the assembly charged the Virginia Secession Convention with acting illegally and held that since officials had violated their trust, state offices were vacant. Their positions were then filled with men loyal to the Union, and the Restored, or Reorganized, Government of Virginia came into existence. Francis H. Pierpont was chosen governor, and John S. Carlile and Waitman T. Willey were named to the United States Senate seats earlier vacated by Virginia's pro-Confederate members. Virginia now had two governments, one under Governor John Letcher at Richmond, which favored the Confederacy, and the other under Pierpont at Wheeling, which was loyal to the Union.

The first steps in the creation of the state of West Virginia were taken by the Second Wheeling Convention, which met in adjourned session from August 6 through August 21. Carlile still favored a small state made up only of counties west of the Allegheny Mountains, but most delegates held out for boundaries approximately those of present West Virginia. Their differences were settled by a compromise which allowed Greenbrier and Pocahontas counties, along with counties of the Eastern Panhandle, to decide for themselves whether they would join the proposed new state. When the thorny boundary problem had been settled, the convention on August 20, 1861, by a vote of 48 to 27, passed an ordinance to create a new state, to be named "Kanawha."

Military Phases of the War

The future of both the Pierpont government and the proposed new state depended upon control of western Virginia by Union military forces. From the outset of the war both the Union and Confederate governments endeavored to hold West Virginia because of its valuable salt resources, particularly in the Kanawha Valley, its productive farms with their diversified agriculture, and the strategic section of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad which traversed the eastern and northern parts of the state. Moreover, both sides were well aware of the psychological advantages in controlling West Virginia. For the Union, its possession would represent a serious inroad into the Old Dominion, the most prestigious state of the Confederacy. For the Confederacy, its retention as a part of Virginia would demonstrate strength and help preserve the high morale prevalent in much of the South at the beginning of the war.

Military action in West Virginia began with important moves in the Monongahela Valley. In an effort to hold the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for the Union, General George B. McClellan arrived in West Virginia with twenty thousand troops. He ordered Colonel Benjamin F. Kelley to attack the Confederates under Colonel George A. Porterfield at Philippi. Kelley engaged the Confederate forces at Philippi on June 3, 1861, and drove them from their positions in a battle sometimes called "the Philippi Races." This initial Union success was followed by occupation of Weston and Buckhannon.

The Confederate troops, now under the command of General Robert S. Garnett, took up positions at Laurel Hill, near Belington, and at Rich Mountain Pass, near Beverly, both of which left them within striking distance of the railroad. McClellan, exhibiting a boldness that later deserted him, struck at both points. He defeated the enemy, under Colonel John Pegram, at Rich Mountain Pass and drove Garnett from Laurel Hill. In his fight, Garnett was overtaken at Corrick's Ford, where he lost his life and the Confederates lost their foothold in the Monongahela Valley. Following these victories, McClellan left West Virginia and placed Union forces under the command of General William S. Rosecrans, who established his camp at Elkwater.

Meanwhile, in the Kanawha Valley the Confederates had taken the initiative. Hoping to retain control of the saltworks and of the valuable James River and Kanawha Turnpike, their forces, under General Henry A. Wise, occupied Charleston. They then took up positions from which they hoped to move northward to Parkersburg and perhaps to Wheeling, a plan which could have wrecked the actions then being taken for the formation of the new state. In the belief that Wise might also strike at Union armies in the Monongahela Valley, McClellan ordered General Jacob D. Cox to advance into the Kanawha Valley from Ohio. Cox advanced up the Kanawha and on July 17, 1861, met Wise's army at the mouth of Scary Creek, near St. Albans. Wise managed to beat off the Union attack, but his victory required every ounce of strength that he possessed, and when he learned that Cox was receiving reinforcements, he began to retire up the Kanawha. In his retreat he gave up Charleston, burned the bridge over Gauley River, and took up new positions east of the Gauley, where he was joined by General John B. Floyd.

In order to offset Union gains and to prevent a possible junction of their armies in the Monongahela and Kanawha valleys, Floyd launched an attack designed to drive a wedge between the two positions. In August he decided to move to Carnifex Ferry, a strategic point on the Gauley River. He found that Colonel Erastus B. Tyler had occupied Kesler's Cross Lanes, only a few miles from Carnifex Ferry. Floyd defeated Tyler, but on September 10 Rosecrans drove Floyd from Carnifex Ferry and reduced the Confederate threat to the Kanawha Valley. In the autumn Robert E. Lee visited West Virginia and became convinced that the Confederates could do little at that time to regain control of sections of West Virginia that had been lost to them.

Most of the decisive fighting in West Virginia took place before the end of 1861. In the Eastern Panhandle positions sometimes changed hands with bewildering rapidity. Throughout the war military action there revolved around efforts to gain or retain control of valuable segments of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. In the campaigns in the Shenandoah Valley West Virginia's distinguished Confederate general, Thomas Jonathan "Stonewall" Jackson, played a vital part. In 1862 Jackson defeated Union forces under John C. Fremont, who launched an attack from his newly-established headquarters at Wheeling.

Farther south, the Confederates took the initiative and pushed Union troops out of Fayetteville and Charleston, but their commander, General W. W. Loring, failed to take advantage of his gains and they lost their hard-won positions. Perhaps the most spectacular Confederate action was the daring raid conducted through much of central West Virginia by Albert Gallatin Jenkins. Equally daring was the series of raids of General William E. Jones and General John D.

Imboden conducted in the following year. Few important battles occurred in West Virginia after 1862, and with the engagements at White Sulphur Springs, or Rocky Gap, and Droop Mountain in the autumn of 1863 the Confederates had been forced out of most of West Virginia.

A New State Is Born

In the midst of the nation's most tragic war West Virginia had its birth. Once supporters of "Kanawha" had obtained endorsement of the Second Wheeling Convention, in itself a clear indication that approval by the Restored Government of Virginia would be forthcoming, plans were made for a convention to draw up a constitution for the proposed new state. The convention, which met at Wheeling from November 26, 1861, through February 18, 1862, consisted of fifty-three members. A recalled session, lasting from February 12 through February 20, 1863, was made up of fifty-six members. Webster and Monroe counties were not represented at either session, and other counties, including Pendleton, Pocahontas, Greenbrier, and Morgan, were represented only in the recalled session. Calhoun, Clay, Fayette, Nicholas, Logan, McDowell, Mercer, and Wyoming counties had delegates chosen in an irregular manner because of the prevailing military conditions.

The constitution adopted for the new state provided that it would be called West Virginia rather than Kanawha, the name originally proposed. It provided that the governor would serve a two-year term and that he would be eligible to succeed himself. Counties were divided into townships, which would serve as administrative units for a system of free public schools which the constitution required the legislature to establish. Interestingly enough, slavery was not abolished. This failure to outlaw the "peculiar institution" refutes the contention that the slavery issue precipitated the separation of West Virginia from Virginia.

The new state movement had yet to clear two hurdles. It required the approval of both the federal government and the government of Virginia. The latter proved easier than the first. West Virginians addressed their request for permission to form a new state to the Restored Government of Virginia under Governor Pierpont. On May 13, 1862, in response to a call by Pierpont, the General Assembly of Virginia met at Wheeling in a special session to consider the dismemberment of the state. Before the day was over it had given its approval to the formation of West Virginia.

In Congress the West Virginia statehood bill was referred to the Senate Committee on Territories, of which John S. Carlile was a member. To the consternation of friends of the new state, Carlile, hitherto a staunch supporter of the proposal, placed several obstacles in its path. They included amendment of the bill to include fifteen additional counties, an enabling act to provide for yet another constitutional convention, and a requirement that West Virginia take steps to abolish slavery. Fortunately, Waitman T. Willey came to the rescue with a compromise in the form of the Willey Amendment, which provided that all slaves under twenty-one years old on July 4, 1863, would become free upon reaching that age.

After considerable debate, the West Virginia statehood bill passed the Senate by a vote of 23 to 15 and the House of Representatives by a vote of 96 to 55. The recalled session of the West Virginia Constitutional Convention then approved the Willey Amendment by a vote of 54 to 0, and the people of West Virginia ratified the amended document 27,740 to 572. Although he had misgivings about the statehood question, President Lincoln issued a proclamation under which West Virginia entered the Union on June 20, 1863, as the thirty-fifth state.

Early Statehood Years

On June 20, 1863, in ceremonies held at Wheeling, the capital of the new state, Arthur I. Boreman, a Republican, who had served as president of the Second Wheeling Convention and taken a prominent part in the creation of the Restored Government of Virginia, was inaugurated the first governor of West Virginia. With the admission of West Virginia to the Union, the Restored Government of Virginia moved to Alexandria, near the federal capital. Hundreds of tasks ranging from West Virginia's military role in the Civil War to the adoption of a state seal confronted the incoming government. In the latter case, the legislature engaged the services of Joseph H. Diss Debar, an Alsatian immigrant who had settled in Doddridge County in 1842 and whose design is still in use.

With the Civil War still in progress, Governor Boreman and the legislature devoted considerable attention to destroying Confederate influence and to adapting the state to its place in the Union. Waitman T. Willey, who had played such a crucial role in rescuing the statehood movement from near-failure, and Peter G. Van Winkle, who was favored over Carlile, were named United States Senators from West Virginia. As the war neared its end, the legislature passed a law requiring voters to affirm that they had never willingly borne arms against the United States, the Restored Government of Virginia, or West Virginia and had never held any office hostile to those three governments. They must also promise to uphold the constitutions of the United States and West Virginia. Obviously, these oaths disqualified former Confederates, most of whom were Democrats, from voting or holding office. Strenuous voters' registration laws were also designed to prevent former Confederates from resuming any political power in West Virginia. Such proscriptive legislation assured the Republicans control of the state for some years.

Contributing to the retention of political power by the Republicans was the enfranchisement in 1870 of Negroes by the Fifteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution. As wartime passions cooled and other pressing problems required the attention of the government, many West Virginians began to favor a "let-up" policy by which political rights would be returned to former Confederates. Liberal Republicans joined Democrats in calling for restoration of the right to vote and hold office and argued that most of the ex-Confederates were as qualified to vote as the newly-enfranchised Negroes, many of whom were illiterate.

In this atmosphere the voters of West Virginia approved the Flick Amendment to the state's constitution. Under it, the right to vote was vested in all males, white and black, over twenty-one years old regardless of their positions in the Civil War. Of more immediate importance, federal officials, contending that the Fifteenth Amendment applied to ex-Confederates as well as to Negroes, intervened in West Virginia to force their registration by the registrars. Armed with their revived political power and aided by Liberal Republicans, the Democrats captured control of state offices in the election of 1870.

The Era of the Bourbon Democrats

The changed political conditions in West Virginia brought a clamor for a new state constitution. On January 16, 1872, seventy-eight delegates met at Charleston to begin deliberations on a new document. Of this number only twelve were Republicans, who were humorously referred to as the "Twelve Apostles." Rejecting a proposal to change the names of Lincoln and Grant counties to Davis and Lee, the delegates, nevertheless, reflected their recent experiences by adopting constitutional provisions forbidding martial law and withholding the right to vote from a citizen who had not registered. The convention also declined to limit the franchise to white men. It increased the term of the governor and other state officials to four years but denied the governor the right to succeed himself. Other important changes were the abandonment of the township system, restructuring of the judiciary, and extension of the terms of the members of the legislature. Opposition to the new instrument was strong, and it passed with a majority of only 4,567 votes in a total of more than 80,000. Although it has frequently been amended, the constitution adopted in 1872 still serves West Virginia.

The Democrats retained control of West Virginia until 1897, although Governor John J. Jacob, who was elected as a Democrat in 1870, ran as an Independent in 1872 and defeated the Democratic Party candidate, Johnson Newlon Camden. Jacob's successors, including Henry M. Mathews, Jacob B. Jackson, Emanuel Willis Wilson, Aretus Brooks Fleming, and William A. MacCorkle, are generally referred to as the Bourbon governors of West Virginia. Like the Bourbon Democrats of the Deep South, most of them were conservative Southerners in sentiment and background and devoted to rural ideals but willing to compromise the Old Order with the needs of the new Industrial Age.

Recognizing the need for investment capital, adequate labor supplies, and improved transportation facilities, the Bourbon governors bent every effort toward providing a climate attractive to industry. Typical was Henry M. Mathews, who sought to encourage the immigration of foreign labor, particularly from Germany and Switzerland, through the creation of a Bureau of Immigration headed by Joseph H. Diss Debar; to encourage the construction of locks and dams in the Ohio and Kanawha rivers for the promotion of the coal industry; and to establish a state geological survey to provide reliable information on the state's mineral resources to prospective investors. Mathews also sought to assure industries of a favorable atmosphere by urging the organization of the state militia on a compulsory basis following the great national railway strike, which began at Martinsburg in 1877.

By no means a typical Bourbon was Governor Wilson, who in many respects stands out as one of the most progressive chief executives in the state's history. During service in the House of Delegates, where he served successively from Jefferson and Kanawha counties, Wilson was a conspicuous foe of monopolies and trusts. His devotion to "the cause of the people" was demonstrated in his successful battle, while in the House of Delegates, to prevent the transfer of control of the Kanawha River to a private corporation. As governor, Wilson fought successfully to correct abuses in election practices, to obtain legislation regulating the adoption and sale of school textbooks, and to forbid the issuance of railroad passes to legislators, but he was unable to obtain legislation forbidding the pollution of West Virginia streams and authorizing the Australian ballot.

Certainly one of the most dramatic facets of the Bourbon years was related to efforts to permanently locate the state capital. Wheeling had served well when the government needed to be safely behind Union lines. After the war, however, the legislature approved its removal to Charleston, nearer the center of the state and on the line of the Chesapeake and Ohio railway, then under construction through West Virginia. The capital remained at Charleston from 1870 until 1875, when it was returned to Wheeling. The site of the seat of government was so controversial that in 1877 the legislature submitted the question to the people of the state. In the referendum Charleston won out over its two leading rivals, Clarksburg and Martinsburg. In 1885 the capital was again moved to Charleston, where it has since remained.

Post-Civil War Industrial Developments

Less exciting perhaps than the debates regarding the location of the capital but of overwhelming importance to the future of West Virginia was the growth of the coal, oil, gas, and timber industries in the late nineteenth century. Of all her resources, none has played a greater role in the history of the state than coal. Bituminous coals lie beneath the surface of about 17,000 square miles of West Virginia in 117 seams, sixty of which are workable. Although coal had been mined commercially in several parts of the state before the Civil War, the real growth of the industry did not begin until the last quarter of the nineteenth century. From a production of about 600,000 tons in 1870, the coal output of the state rose to 6,300,000 tons in 1890 and to 21,500,000 tons in 1900.

Leaders of the rapidly expanding coal industry often exerted a profound influence upon state affairs. Among the coal barons were James Otis Watson, whose son-in-law, Aretus Brooks Fleming, served as governor and whose son, Clarence W. Watson, held a seat in the United States Senate. Other prominent coal operators included William H. Edwards, who did much to develop Kanawha Valley mines; Thomas G. McKell, Samuel Dixon, Joseph L. Beury, and John Nuttall in the New River fields; and Isaac T. Mann, James Ellwood Jones, J. P. Hewitt, and Jenkin Jones in the southern part of the state.

The oil industry of West Virginia had its beginnings in the months immediately prior to the Civil War, when General Samuel D. Karnes drilled a successful well at Burning Springs in Wirt County. Within a year some six thousand persons were living in the vicinity. After the war oil wells sprang up by the dozens in Wirt, Pleasants, and Ritchie counties. In 1876 the new fields had 292 wells and produced 319,740 barrels of oil. The output continued to rise until 1900, when 16,195,675 barrels were produced in the state. By then the industry had expanded to other counties, particularly Tyler and Lewis. Contributing to the success of the oil ventures were the researches of Dr. Israel C. White, an eminent West Virginia geologist whose anticlinal theory enabled drillers to work with greater assurance of striking oil than had previously been possible.

Natural gas, like oil, was for many years regarded as a nuisance. The impetus to the gas industry came with its use for purposes of illumination and heating in many sections of the country. In 1906 West Virginia took first place among the states in natural gas production. It held that position until 1917, its peak year, when 308,000,000 cubic feet were produced.

Ironically, the forests, which had been regarded by pioneers as a mixed blessing, provided another of the state's leading industries in the post-Civil War era. Lumber had long been used for constructing houses, flatboats, steamboats, and other necessities, but the real onslaught upon the forests was made with the introduction of the bandsaw. Railroads were built into the logging areas, but logs were also floated downstream to distant markets. Rafting long remained a major occupation along Middle Island Creek and on the Little Kanawha, Elk, New, and Guyandotte rivers. The lumber industry of West Virginia reached its peak in 1909, when 1,473,000,000 feet of lumber were sold.

Like the coal industry, the lumber business also had its wealthy leaders. Typical of the lumber kings were the Raine brothers, Thomas W. and John, whose Meadow River Lumber Company stimulated the growth of the town of Rainelle. Among other important lumber towns were St. Albans, Richwood, Curtin, Follansbee, Elkins, and Buckhannon.

Essential to the development of the coal, oil, gas, and timber resources of West Virginia were improved transportation facilities. At the close of the Civil War the state had only the Baltimore and Ohio, which had been completed to Wheeling in 1853, and the Northwestern Virginia Railroad, which connected Grafton and Parkersburg. The railroad era began within a decade after the war. In 1873 the Chesapeake and Ohio was completed to Huntington and opened the rich coal fields along the New and Kanawha rivers. During the construction of its Big Bend tunnel through the Allegheny Mountains near Hinton was born the legend of John Henry, who tested his strength against a new steam drill. The Norfolk and Western Railway tapped the coal fields of southern West Virginia in the 1890s and contributed to the growth of Bluefield, Bramwell, Welch, Williamson, and Kenova, while the Virginian, noted for its use of gravity and its unusually heavy locomotives, fostered the development of Beckley, Princeton, and Mullens. In the eastern part of the state the Western Maryland Railroad reached into the lumbering regions and connected with the Coal and Coke, built by Henry Gassaway Davis. These lines spurred the growth of Elkins, Thomas, Davis, Parsons, Gassaway, and other towns and gave new life to several older centers. Also of utmost importance were improvements in the rivers, particularly the Ohio, Kanawha, and Monongahela.

Life in the new industrial communities often partook of the character of the towns of the Old West. Booms brought in people of all classes, most of them hoping either to get rich or at least decidedly to improve their lot, goals which few accomplished. Lawlessness and disorder were rife in many towns, and human life was sometimes counted of little value. In coal-mining and lumber communities there often existed a paternalistic system in which most of the needs of the residents, including housing, stores, and even churches and schools, were provided by the companies. Although it has become fashionable to criticize the system, the truth is that the isolation of many of the towns made it almost essential if necessary services were to be had by the residents.

Of all the newly-developing occupations none was more hazardous than coal mining, where slate falls, explosions of dust and dangerous gases, and mechanical accidents were common. The worst mining disaster in the history of the state occurred at Monongah in 1907, when 361 men lost their lives. Other major tragedies included the death of 183 miners at Eccles in 1914 and 112 at Layland in 1915. Unhappily, such scenes are not entirely in the past. Despite many safety precautions, the mines remain dangerous, as was demonstrated in 1968 when 78 men were killed at Farmington.

A Republican Era

In 1896, when the nation rejected William Jennings Bryan and Populistic principles for William McKinley and the "full dinner pail," West Virginians again turned to the Republicans. The succession of Republican governors, however, proved as friendly to business interests as had the Bourbon Democrats. At the turn of the century the dominant figure in the Democratic Party was Henry Gassaway Davis, a coal and railroad magnate, while the Republican Party, after the death of Nathan Goff, Jr., was dominated by the son-in-law and business partner of Davis, Stephen B. Elkins. So great was the power of the latter in his party that the first four of the Republican governors after 1897 were referred to as the "Elkins Governors." All four, including George W. Atkinson, Albert B. White, William M. O. Dawson, and William E. Glasscock, served in a generally progressive period in the history of the nation, and all tempered their conservative views with some progressive tendencies.

Perhaps the most outstanding of the Republican governors during the years prior to the First World War was Henry D. Hatfield, who was elected in 1912, at the high tide of national progressivism. Reflected in his administration were his experiences as a medical doctor in the coal-mining and railroad towns of southern West Virginia and his interest in public health and the welfare of the laboring classes. During his governorship laws were passed forbidding employment of boys under fourteen years old in the coal mines and establishing a Workmen's Compensation Fund. In addition, Hatfield was instrumental in the creation of the State Health Department, a state Bureau of Labor, and the State Road Commission.

The Democratic complexion of national politics and the outbreak of the First World War combined to give West Virginia a Democratic governor in a fairly long chain of Republican chief executives. In 1916 John J. Cornwell, a Democrat, captured the governorship, but he had to work with a Republican legislature, an arrangement made easier because of the demands of the American war effort. Under Cornwell further steps were taken to improve West Virginia highways, and, because of the new problems arising from the growing use of the automobile, a state police system was set up. Following the war the Republicans returned to power. With Ephraim F. Morgan, Howard M. Gore, and William G. Conley as governors, they remained at the helm until they were turned out of office in 1932 in the depths of the Great Depression.

The Problems of Labor

One reason for the long period of Republican control of West Virginia lay in the general prosperity enjoyed by the state and the nation. Yet the economic picture remained highly uncertain for labor, particularly in the coal mines, and the early years of the twentieth century were marked by considerable labor unrest. During the decade following its organization in 1890 the United Mine Workers of America had endeavored to unionize the West Virginia mines. The organization's greatest success was in the Kanawha field, where with the assistance of "Mother" Mary Jones, an elderly union organizer with almost uncanny influence over the miners, most mines were organized by 1902. Yet, unionization proved exceedingly difficult, partly because the law generally favored the operators, who made use of court injunctions to restrain miners from picketing, striking, or molesting company property. An enormous setback for labor occurred when the United States Supreme Court, in the case of the Hitchman Coal and Coke Company v. the United Mine Workers, ruled that coal operators could run their mines under any regulations that they chose to make. With long hours of labor required, low wages, the necessity to trade at company stores where prices were often inflated, and other difficulties confronting the miners, discontent in many communities lay only slightly beneath a deceptively calm surface.

In 1912-1913 one of the most serious labor disturbances in West Virginia history occurred on Paint Creek in the Kanawha field. The trouble, which spread to nearby Cabin Creek, arose when coal companies refused to renew contracts under which the miners had worked for several years. The miners countered by striking, whereupon the companies evicted them from their homes and attempted to operate their mines with imported labor and other strikebreakers. For weeks the strike continued, with tension steadily mounting. Hundreds of coal mining families took up residence in tents and improvised shelters along the public highways and occasionally clashed with the Baldwin-Felts detectives and other armed guards employed by the companies. At Mucklow a pitched battle occurred in which twelve miners and four company guards lost their lives. A few miles below that town mine officials and others aboard a moving train shot into a tent colony in the middle of the night.

In an effort to combat the disorders, Governor Glasscock proclaimed martial law over the area, and about a hundred persons, including "Mother" Jones, were arrested. When Governor Hatfield took office, he forced the operators to bargain with the United Mine Workers, and the bloody strike came to an end. By then it had gained attention throughout the country, and a United States Senate committee conducted an investigation into conditions on Paint Creek.

The First World War was accompanied by circumstances highly favorable to labor, but with the end of the conflict miners were threatened with the loss of wartime gains. Of particular concern to southern West Virginia miners were the unorganized Logan and Mingo areas. In 1920 and 1921 serious trouble broke out in the two counties. At Matewan a clash between miners and Baldwin-Felts agents resulted in the deaths of nine persons, and other confrontations proved almost as bloody. In August, 1921, about three thousand miners from the Kanawha Valley assembled at Marmet for a march upon Mingo County. Although "Mother" Jones tried to dissuade them from their course, they set out for the southern counties. At Blair Mountain they were met by about twelve hundred state police, deputy sheriffs, mine guards, and others, who sought to prevent them from reaching their destination. In the ensuing battle of Blair Mountain, with its First World War atmosphere, three men lost their lives and about forty others were wounded. The miners were defeated, and 543 of them were tried on various charges including treason.

Industrial and Agricultural Changes

The First World War had an enduring impact upon the development of West Virginia industry. Wartime demands for steel and chemicals, many of which had previously been imported from Germany, made expansion of those industries imperative. Steel production in West Virginia centered primarily in the Northern Panhandle at Wheeling and Weirton. The chemical industries were located at several places, including Belle, Charleston, South Charleston, and Institute, making the Kanawha Valley one of the most important chemical regions of the country. The Second World War further stimulated the steel and chemical industries, with the latter expanding rapidly along the Ohio River. The presence of rich salt brines and abundant supplies of coal combined with other advantages to give West Virginia the high place the state attained in these endeavors.

Other industries also experienced significant growth in the early twentieth century. Like steel and chemical production, glassmaking, one of the pioneer enterprises of West Virginians, was stimulated during the First World War. Major glassmaking centers have been Huntington, Weston, Williamstown, Morgantown, Charleston, New Martinsville, Moundsville, and Milton, the latter two producing the famed Fostoria and Blenko varieties. The textile industry, also dating from pioneer times, grew to considerable size, with important establishments at Charleston, Parsons, Martinsburg, Huntington, Morgantown, and Parkersburg. Its products have included hosiery and other wearing apparel and synthetic goods. Other industries which have survived and grown in the twentieth century have been based upon the clay, limestone, and sandstone deposits of the state. Boatbuilding, another of the state's oldest industries, was concentrated at Point Pleasant in later years.

Many of the new and expanding industries were dependent upon hydroelectric power, which became increasingly common after the First World War. Important generating plants have been located at Windsor, Glasgow, Logan, Kenova, and Rivesville. One of the newest, the John E. Amos plant, near St. Albans, is one of the largest in the United States.

With the growth of industrialization, agriculture became relatively less important in the lives of West Virginians. In 1900 the state had 92,874 farms embracing 10,600,000 acres of land. As late as 1950 there remained 81,434 farms, with acreage covering 53.3 per cent of the area of the state. By 1964, however, the number of farms had dropped to 34,504 and the farm acreage to only 34 per cent of the area of the state. Farms have become more specialized, with hay, apples, corn, tobacco, dairy products, cattle, and eggs among the major products.

The significance of agriculture in West Virginia history, however, cannot be measured entirely in terms of crops and livestock produced. Until the twentieth century the state was predominantly agricultural, and rural values and ways of life continued to exert a profound influence upon the attitudes and character of the people long after agriculture began to decline. Language patterns, folkways, religious concepts, education, and other attributes were slow to change. Not until the arrival of the automobile and other forms of rapid transportation and of radio and television did the old ways associated with rural patterns of life undergo substantial alteration.

Education and Cultural Contributions

Although West Virginia has often been regarded as educationally backward and culturally deprived, her achievements have by no means been meager. One of the most striking conditions in the state at the time of its birth was the lack of a statewide system of free public schools. The framers of the first constitution charged the legislature with the creation of such a system. During the first half-century of statehood West Virginia's typical educational institution was a one-room school accommodating pupils ranging in age from six to eighteen or more years. The introduction of the graded school plan, devised by Alexander Luark Wade of Monongalia County, proved a step forward and was ultimately adopted throughout the country. Another improvement came with the teachers' institutes, often financed by the Peabody Fund, which enabled school systems to provide a type of in-service training for their teachers, many of whom spent most of their careers isolated from other members of their profession. The introduction of the county-unit plan for public schools during the Great Depression was another instance in which West Virginia was in the forefront of a significant educational trend.

The founding of West Virginia University in 1867 and the establishment of a number of state normal schools for the training of public school teachers in the following decade marked significant advances in higher education. In the 1920s, when the high school movement had made headway in most parts of the state, the normal schools became state teachers colleges and began to offer baccalaureate degrees. A further step occurred in the 1940s, when they expanded their curricula and became general four-year institutions. Recent developments in higher education have included the steady growth of Marshall University as a graduate institution, the creation of the West Virginia Board of Regents with control over public higher education, the establishment of the West Virginia College of Graduate Studies, and the growth of community colleges.

In literature, music, the arts, and other areas West Virginians have won national and even international notice. The state's most famous author is Pearl S. Buck, a native of Hillsboro. Mrs. Buck won the Nobel Prize for literature for her novels depicting Chinese life and for accounts of her mother and father. Other eminent novelists have included Melville Davisson Post, who gained fame as a mystery writer, Rebecca Harding Davis, Margaret Prescott Montague, Hubert and Hobart Skidmore, John Peale Bishop, and Alberta Pierson Hannum. Jean Lee Latham is one of the nation's outstanding authors of juvenile books and a winner of the Newberry Award. Two of the most gifted poets of West Virginia have been Waitman T. Barbe and Louise McNeill Pease, the latter justly acclaimed for her understanding and appreciation of the state's history and cultural heritage.

In music and drama the contributions of West Virginians range from efforts to preserve the cultural traditions of Appalachian folk music to the work of noted composers and opera singers. In recent years many of the old Appalachian folksongs have been collected and recorded, and old instruments have experienced a revival. Among modern composers George Crumb has earned international distinction and received a Pulitzer Prize for his "Echoes of Time and the River." Well known opera singers from West Virginia have included Eleanor Steber, Phyllis Curtin, and Suzanne Fisher. Two popular outdoor dramas, Honey in the Rock, a portrayal of the formation of the state, and The Hatfields and the McCoys, a story of perhaps the most famous feud of the southern mountains, each summer draw attention to the colorful history of the Mountain State.

Although West Virginians have not shown the same appreciation of their past as have neighboring Virginians and Kentuckians, they have not entirely neglected their history. Much of the professional writing has been done by members of the history faculty of West Virginia University. James Morton Callahan, a pioneer in American diplomatic history, also made substantive contributions to state historiography. Charles H. Ambler's histories of West Virginia, his studies of sectionalism in Virginia and transportation in the Ohio Valley, and his biographies of leaders such as Francis H. Pierpont and Waitman T. Willey, gave him eminence as a regional and even national historian. Works on the Civil War and postwar eras by Festus P. Summers remain solid studies of neglected aspects of the state's history. Authors of more recent monographs include Richard O. Curry, George E. Moore, and Otis K. Rice. Among non-professional writers on the history of West Virginia, Roy Bird Cook and Boyd Stutler were conspicuous both for the quality of their work and their collections of West Virginiana.

West Virginians have also contributed substantially to the general culture and welfare of the nation. John W. Davis was the Democratic presidential nominee in 1924, a successful ambassador to England, and an outstanding solicitor general of the United States. Dwight Morrow was a distinguished ambassador to Mexico, and Cyrus W. Vance served as the American negotiator at the Paris conference which sought to bring the Vietnam War to a close. Two eminent Negro leaders had West Virginia connections. Booker T. Washington, the best known Negro spokesman in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries, spent his youth at Malden. Carter Woodson, one of the most prominent historians of the twentieth century, was for a time on the faculty of West Virginia State College. In the field of professional sports, Jerry West, Rod Hundley, and Hal Greer have been among West Virginians to gain national attention. A totally different kind of contribution to national life was made by Anna Jarvis, who was instrumental in bringing about the observance of Mother's Day.

The Recent Past

West Virginia has perhaps changed more in the last forty years than in all her previous history. Like her sister states, she was profoundly affected by the changing attitudes and conditions engendered by the Great Depression and the Second World War. In 1933 the depression produced a political reversal, which swept the Democrats into state offices after thirty-six years of Republican rule. The succession of Democratic governors included Herman Guy Kump, Homer A. Holt, Clarence W. Meadows, Matthew M. Neely, Okey L. Pattenon, and William C. Marland, whose terms corresponded to Democratic administrations in Washington. In 1956, during the time when Dwight D. Eisenhower was president of the United States, Cecil Underwood won the governorship, but even he had a Democratic legislature. Four years later the Democrats regained control of the state, at a time when the party also returned to power at the national level. During these Democratic years William W. Barron and Hulett C. Smith served as governor. In 1968, in keeping with national trends, Arch A. Moore, Jr., won the gubernatorial race. Four years later, under a new constitutional amendment, Moore became the first governor to succeed himself since the election of John J. Jacob a hundred years earlier.

More profoundly affecting the state than the political fluctuations were the vast social and economic changes. Like the rest of the nation, West Virginia experienced vast alterations as a consequence of the new social and economic philosophy, which swept away the nineteenth-century doctrines of laissez faire with respect to government intervention in many human and business areas. In its place arose the concept of a social as well as a political democracy. New Deal legislation, paralleled and complemented by state actions, placed a heavy emphasis upon social security programs, improvement of working conditions, and social leveling concepts.

Education and highway construction have perennially received major attention by the state government. In both areas, recent accomplishments have often resulted from dollar matching programs initiated by the federal government. Transportation changes in the state since the 1950s have been of major importance. As railroad services declined, traffic on the state's highways substantially increased. The West Virginia Turnpike, opened from Charleston to Princeton in 1954, was then regarded as a marvel of engineering achievement. Under construction, with large segments completed, are 512 miles of Interstate highways and 424 miles of Appalachian Corridor highways. Of evergrowing importance in passenger service is air travel.

With her industrial growth, educational advances, improved transportation, and increasing awareness of her social problems, West Virginia, nevertheless, had its misfortunes. Mechanization of the state's coal mines displaced large numbers of miners during the years following the Second World War. In 1950 the coal mines of the state employed 119,568 persons. Twenty years later they provided employment to only 47,600. Thousands of unemployed miners either became additions to welfare rolls or left the state for cities such as Cleveland, Detroit, and Chicago, where they sought jobs. The state suffered a severe loss of population, and many once-flourishing coal-mining communities were reduced to little more than ghost towns. Contributing to changes in the mining regions was the increase in surface and auger mining, which in 1970 accounted for nearly one-fourth of the coal produced in the state.

Many of the problems faced by the state following the Second World War stemmed from the fact that much of her industry had been extractive in nature. The depletion of oil, gas, and timber resources inevitably reduced the demand for laborers in those industries. Of greater long-range effects, perhaps, were other effects of both the extractive and secondary industries. West Virginians, like Americans generally, became increasingly aware of the ecological effects of strip mining and timbering, of stream pollution through industrial wastes, dangerous levels of air pollution, and other unfortunate by-products of industrialization. Solutions to these problems became more urgent as the state began to turn to tourism as a significant factor in its economy.

Despite the vast changes since the Depression and Second World War, West Virginia history has shown considerable continuity. Emigration from the state resulted in important population losses, and internal population shifts changed many parts of the state. Moreover, the introduction of professional and skilled workers from outside the state by large corporations altered the character of many communities. Yet, despite these demographic changes, West Virginians retained many of the older traditions of friendliness and interest in human concerns which have characterized them since pioneer times. As one prominent New York journalist recently observed, West Virginians reflect, in an age in which ideals are changing rapidly, something that has been worthwhile in American culture.

DRIVER IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM

(Point System)

West Virginia's Driver Improvement Program, as administered by the Department of Motor Vehicles, is designed to eliminate the chronically careless driver from the state's highway system.

Under the program "points" are assigned to those convicted of various moving traffic violations. Conviction notices are forwarded to the Department of Motor Vehicles, which maintains each individual's driving record and statistics.

An operator receiving a total of 6 points is sent a warning letter by the Department, outlining the need for more careful driving. Individuals reaching the 9 to 12 point level are required to appear before a Department Reviewing Officer, at which time the most serious cases are subject to suspension of their operator's privileges.

STATE PARKS—WEST VIRGINIA'S RECREATION PARADISE

West Virginia's State Park System is a living legacy of recreation, cultural, and vacation opportunities for all citizens, and for growing numbers of vacationers from other states. For the past 45 years, the park system has been maintained and expanded to provide quality recreation that our citizens appreciate as a major ingredient of the "good life."

The system began in 1929 with the establishment of the site of a major state Civil War engagement, Droop Mountain, as the first state park area. Shortly afterwards, during the years of the Great Depression, major emphasis was placed on creation of a system of parks and vacation lands in the Mountain State. By the mid-1930's parks such as Cacapon, Lost River, Babcock, Holly River, and Watoga were begun. The development of vacation cabins, roads, trails, lakes and swimming pools was undertaken by the State, in cooperation with the old Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC), and the National Park Service. It was the beginning of the fine park system that has continued to rank right at the top nationally among state park facilities.

Vacation cabins became one of the most popular attractions right from the first. To this day, most park cabins are booked to capacity months before the traditional summer vacation season. Now, with the expansion of winter sports facilities, longer vacation periods, and public awareness of a four-season concept of recreation, cabins are filled at many parks year-around. Cabins, whether the old-time log style, or of modern construction, provide quality family outdoor lodging as well as the perfect choice for those persons on a budget. The park or forest cabin is a true bargain in the days of inflated living and recreation costs.

The greatest period of demand for recreational facilities followed World War II. While most states had the opportunity of developing a basic park system in the 1930's, only a very few, among them West Virginia, chose to expand and develop to meet the growing demand for more parks, more acres, and more facilities for their accommodation.

By the mid-1950's the parks boasted of year-round public facilities, with the completion of dozens of heated "deluxe" cabins, and rustic (yet modern) lodges at Blackwater Falls, Cacapon and Mont Chateau State Parks. Funds to build these facilities came from the State's first revenue bond program, whereby money was borrowed for construction and repaid over a score of years from earnings through public rental.

Blackwater Falls State Park is a typical example. The region was ravaged in the early 1900's by logging, then by a series of disastrous forest fires, and further by exploitation and strip mining which occurred during the unregulated demand for coal during World War II. The new lodge and 25 deluxe cabins formed the nucleus of a major state park, which preserved for all time the rich natural beauty of the deep gorge of Blackwater River, the famous falls of which are a natural landmark in West Virginia, and provided miles of trails for hiking and riding. By 1970, the park was one of the leading year-round facilities in the entire park system.

In the early 1960's the older, but highly popular, log vacation cabins which were largely constructed by hand as the final example of mountain skill at stonemasonry and log home building were totally rebuilt. The biggest addition at this time was the construction of modern kitchens with indoor plumbing replacing the traditional "path out back." Many state forest cabins were also upgraded in a similar manner, but at two forests—Kumbrabow and Seneca—the older facilities were left intact for those family visitors who wanted to share the traditional mountain heritage of kerosene lighting and water pumped from a well.

By 1963 it was evident that the emergence of the Appalachian region as a vacationland was only a matter of time. Demands on the public and private sector of recreation were unprecedented, but development had not occurred. Accordingly, an agreement was reached between the Federal and State governments for a demonstration program. The multi-million dollar program was designed, in part, to demonstrate to the private sector that recreation was a major future source of jobs, and that this industry would eventually emerge as a major factor in the State's highlands region. The "State Parks for the 1970's" program, as it was termed, eventually added three new state parks to the system, and provided for major expansion to three others.

At Grandview, near Beckley, site of the outdoor dramatic productions of "Honey In The Rock," and "Hatfields and McCoys," parking and picnic areas were greatly expanded and nature trails improved to accommodate the growing crowds at this scenic park which overlooks the famed New River Gorge.

By 1968, a major expansion program was completed at the Cass Scenic Railroad. This old logging line, remnant of thousands of miles of such railway which crisscrossed the mountains, became a state park facility in 1961. From 1963 through 1967 it operated only on a four mile segment. Beginning in 1968, as a result of this renovation of trackage, the full eleven mile line to the area of Bald Knob (West Virginia's second-highest mountain) was opened to public use. Additional public facilities included a 300-car parking lot. Funds to accomplish this project were borrowed and will be repaid through income from the sale of tickets to ride the old logging trains.

Hawks Nest, a spectacular overlook high atop the famed New River Gorge, has long been one of the Mountain State's most popular park attractions. Under the "State Parks for the 1970's" program this park was greatly expanded. New facilities include a 30-room lodge overlooking the canyon, new overlook at Lovers' Leap, a marina and boat dock on the lake at the bottom of the deep chasm, and a unique aerial cable tramway to carry visitors from the rim to the bottom of the gorge.

Pipestem State Park Resort, said by some to be the "crown jewel of the park system," has become one of the leading state park recreational attractions in eastern America. Breath-taking in almost every dimension, Pipestem is set along a rolling plateau overlooking the rugged and undeveloped Bluestone River Gorge, near Hinton and Princeton.

The park features two comfortable lodges, the 113-room Pipestem Lodge perched on the edge of the river canyon; and Mountain Creek Lodge, a secluded 30-room facility at the bottom of the deep gorge. The Mountain Creek facility is accessible only via the park's canyon aerial tramway system which sweeps over a thousand feet down into the valley from the visitor center.

Other recreational facilities include a challenging 18-hole championship golf course and an enjoyable par-3 "executive golf layout." Clubhouse facilities rank second to none and highlight golf as a major new attraction of state parks.

The visitor center, headquarters for the year-round nature and recreation program, also features a native West Virginia Arts and Crafts demonstration and sales center which is coming into its own as a major outlet for Appalachian crafts. Nearby is a 550-seat outdoor amphitheater where outdoor drama and music concerts are performed regularly, the recreation center with its 200-seat cafeteria, olympic-size swimming pool and indoor recreation rooms, and the park system's only ice skating rink.

Remaining major facilities include an overlook atop Pipestem Knob, high peak of the region, completely equipped campground, archery range and clubhouse, riding stable with both horses and bicycles featured, and the park information and headquarters building.

Pipestem recently surpassed Hawks Nest as the most heavily utilized of all West Virginia State Parks!

Twin Falls, near Mullens and Pineville, provides year-round recreation in the State's southern highlands for the first time. The park features a 20-room guest lodge and 13 comfortable heated guest cabins for year-round occupancy. Other highlights are a 9-hole regulation golf course, archery, and a recreation center building that includes a large swimming pool and indoor recreation.

Canaan Valley, located in a deep high mountain valley near Blackwater Falls State Park, is blossoming as one of the premier winter sports centers in the East. The valley, which exceeds 3000 feet in average elevation, is surrounded by 4000 - 4500 foot high mountain peaks.

The park's winter sports center includes miles of ski trails, most serviced by full artificial supplemental snow-making equipment. Two double-chair ski lifts are operated all winter, and also in summertime as a scenic tourist attraction. The ski center includes a pro shop, restaurant, skiers' pub, lounge, and other public facilities. Dozens of miles of cross-country ski trails are also under development.

In order to handle the thousands of winter and summer vacationers, Canaan Valley is constructing a 250-room guest lodge, which overlooks the scenic valley and the park's 18-hole championship golf course. This course is said by many to be one of the most challenging, yet enjoyable, major courses ever constructed.

As planned recreational development continues, many additional facilities and features are planned. The new Cacapon State Park 18-hole championship golf course is attracting thousands of golfers to this fine year-round eastern pan-handle attraction. Year-round guest cabins are soon to be constructed at North Bend, the State's major Ohio Valley parkland, and development of hiking trails, more campsites, and historic interpretation facilities are blossoming forth.

West Virginia is proud that its park system ranks at the very top of all such facilities. A source of pride and enjoyment to West Virginians and a top tourist attraction, the parks cater to nearly six million visitors each year, providing quality family recreation in the scenic outdoors.

U. S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Forest Service

Monongahela National Forest

Headquarters: Elkins

Monongahela National Forest was proclaimed by President Woodrow Wilson on April 28, 1920, under the Weeks Law. This law of 1911 provides for the cooperation by states with the United States, and the protection of watersheds of navigable streams. In West Virginia, the national forest was established for flood protection in the Ohio and Potomac River valleys. It is one of a system of 154 national forests and the only national forest wholly in West Virginia. The Clark-McNary Act of June 7, 1924, broadened the objectives to provide for reforestation and production of timber. The Multiple Use Act of June 12, 1960, provides that National Forests shall be managed for outdoor recreation, range, timber, watershed, hunting and fishing.

The public forest is dedicated to the protection, development, and management of all its resources for the greatest good to the greatest number.

Within the proclaimed boundary there are 1,647,146 acres of which 839,630 acres are owned by the United States. Directly in charge of the national forest is the Forest Supervisor. In the national forest are six ranger districts, each administered by a district ranger.

Counties in the National Forest and their current acreage in National Forest ownership are:

Grant .....	15,793	Pocahontas .....	288,792
Greenbrier .....	100,163	Preston .....	3,897
Nicholas .....	23,527	Randolph .....	176,454
Pendleton .....	72,440	Tucker .....	93,837
		Webster .....	64,727

The National forest is administered in cooperation with several conservation agencies, including the West Virginia Department of Natural Resources. Twenty-five per cent of receipts from the sale of timber and other products and use fees is returned to the nine national forest counties for schools (80%) and roads (20%).

FORESTRY SCIENCES LABORATORY

Morgantown

Located on 2.6 acre tract, adjacent to West Virginia University's Evansdale Campus. Research in management of wildlife habitat in Appalachian Forests involves improvement of forest habitat for squirrels, turkeys, deer, grouse, and other animals. Engineering research of timber harvesting systems for the Appalachian area involves improvement of transporting and handling of timber and improvement of logging methods to protect the forest environment. State and private forestry works in cooperation with state forestry agencies, private landowners and researchers in improving the planning, management and use of forests and forest products, flood prevention, watersheds and riverbasin projects.

FOREST PRODUCTS MARKETING LABORATORY

DONALD G. CUPPETT, Chief of Laboratory

Princeton

Research in wood product improvement, marketing and manufacture of primary forest products, marketing secondary wood products, and forest industrial opportunities.

FERNOW EXPERIMENTAL FOREST

Chief of Laboratory: James H. Patric ..... Parsons

A 3,640-acre outdoor laboratory devoted to research on production of hardwood timber and water from forest land. Experiments center on how, amount and frequency of forest cutting affect the timber, wildlife, soil, and water resources; the proper use of logging equipment and roads; and the economics of forest management.

OIL AND GAS DEVELOPMENTS IN WEST VIRGINIA IN 1974

Douglas G. Patchen, West Virginia Geological Survey

Drilling in West Virginia during 1974 resulted in a 5.7 percent decrease in total completions (Table I). Deep well completions also decreased, but more significantly (46.7 percent), as most operators concentrated on shallow trends. Exploratory drilling, mainly to shallow targets, increased 17.8 percent. The 106 exploratory completions included 18 new-field wildcats (3 successful), 12 new-pool tests (6 discoveries and 1 extension), 21 deeper-pool tests (11 discoveries, 5 development, and 1 extension), and 55 outposts (37 extensions). The success ratio for exploratory wells was 55.7 percent, whereas the ratio for development wells was 91.0 percent.

Wells were completed in 43 of the State's 55 counties as most shallow trends remained active. The 845 total completions included 509 gas wells, 102 oil wells, 111 combination wells, 107 dry holes, 14 for gas storage, and 2 for salt water injection. Griffithsville was the most active oil field with 66 completions (65 oil wells) and Glenville the most active gas field with 33 completions (30 gas wells). Gilmer County had the most completions in a county (115) followed by Harrison (59) and Lewis (50). Exploratory activity was highest in Wood (11 wells) followed by Harrison and Mercer (7 each; see Table I).

Of the 59 exploratory successes, 55 were in shallow formations, mostly in the Benson trend in north central West Virginia, or in the Weir-Berea trend in the southern part of the State. Only 2 of these 55 successes were new field discoveries, one in the Riley sand in Taylor County, and one in the Benson in Barbour County. Four deeper-pool tests discovered gas in the Benson in shallow fields, and one new pool was opened in the Benson near Cassidy Field, Randolph County, an area with shallow production from the Fifth and Bayard. In the southern Weir-Berea trend, several Weir extensions were completed as well as the first development wells in the Ashland-Clark Gap Field. The discovery that led to the most activity, however, was the new pool test that discovered Berea oil in Wood County. This discovery was the first of 29 successful Berea oil wells to be reported last year from this area, named Kanawha Station Field.

The four successful deep exploratory wells included one Oriskany newfield discovery and an extension, both in Kanawha Station Field, a new-pool discovery in the Oriskany in Marion County, and the State's first Sycamore Siltstone discovery in Harrison County. This thin siltstone is present in the north central part of the State at a depth 1,400 feet below the Benson and 1,000 feet above the Onondaga. Traditionally all units above the Onondaga have been referred to as shallow targets, with deep wells penetrating the Onondaga or lower formations. This Sycamore discovery, however, produced from perforations between 6,203 and 6,220 feet, making it a deep well according to the 6,000 foot definition in the Oil and Gas Conservation Act. The Sycamore well, and other failures to this and other Upper Devonian targets below the Benson, was part of a new trend in exploratory wells that began in 1974. This is a trend toward drilling wells 500 to 1,200 feet below the Benson, formerly the deepest producer in the area, in the central and north central counties from Fayette and Nicholas up to Harrison and Barbour Counties.

Total deep completions decreased 46.7 percent from 1973, a year which registered a 32.8 percent decrease from the previous year. Thus, the decline in deep drilling remains a significant trend in the State. Only 24 deep wells were completed in 1974, 16 in the Onondaga or Oriskany, 6 in the Newburg, and 2 to the Tuscarora. These deep wells represented only 2.8 percent of all 1974 wells. The 16 Onondaga-Oriskany wells, representing 9 exploratory and 7 development wells, were drilled in 13 counties with no apparent trends developed. Late in the year new locations were concentrated in Preston and Tucker Counties where gas was found in at least 4 unreported wells. The 6 Newburg wells included 5 exploratory failures and one development gas well. It has now been several years since a Newburg discovery has been made. The two Tuscarora wells were exploratory failures in Hancock and Monongalia Counties.

Exxon Corporation completed 3 basement tests, all dry holes, during 1974 and was drilling below 9,200 feet in a fourth as the year ended. The 20,222 foot total depth in the Calhoun County well is a new depth record for West Virginia.

Shallow completions, which represented 97.2 percent of all 1974 wells, were led by Pocono (Squaw, Weir, Berea) wells (278) followed by the usual leader, the Big Injun (260) and the Benson (170). Nearly 40 percent of the 278 Pocono completions were oil wells in Griffithsville and Kanawha Station Fields. Most of the Big Injun wells were in Gilmer and adjacent counties (129 wells) with 36 more wells in Roane County oil fields. The Benson wells were drilled in the usual 4-county (Barbour, Harrison, Upshur, Lewis) trend but 7 of the 18 Benson exploratory successes were drilled in 6 counties outside of this trend (Table II).

Oil production increased 12.1 percent in 1974 due to the Berea activity in Wood and Lincoln Counties. Gas production decreased slightly (0.9 percent; see Table III). Average IP figures are: oil wells, 12 b/d; gas wells 1,057 Mcfgpd; and combination wells, 21 b/d and 845 Mcfgpd. The well-head price for new gas was increased to $0.75/Mcf late in the year, but Penn Grade crude was purchased for $10.13/bbl, the same price as 1973.

TAX DEPARTMENT
COLLECTION OF REVENUE
COLLECTION OF BUSINESS AND OCCUPATION TAX,
CARRIER INCOME TAX, AND CORPORATE
NET INCOME TAX

The Business and Occupation Tax, Chapter 11, Article 13, West Virginia Code of 1931, as amended, is a tax levied for the privilege of engaging in business in West Virginia. The tax is measured by the application of rates against values of products, gross proceeds of sales, or gross income according to the classification of the business activity in which the taxpayer is engaged. Despite the commonly applied erroneous name, "Gross Sales Tax", it is not a sales tax. Neither is it a transaction tax in the sense that once it is paid on a particular article or service or activity it need not again be paid. It is not, strictly speaking, an income tax, although in most instances, the gross income is the measure of the tax. Under the production of manufacturing classifications the measure of the tax is the value of the article produced or manufactured as shown by the gross proceeds derived from the sale thereof, provided the proceeds of sale are indicative of the true value of the article. If more than one person engages in a single activity or transaction, as in the case of the contractor and sub-contractor, each must pay a tax measured by his entire income regardless of the tax paid by the other.

The business classifications under the Business and Occupation Tax Law are as follows:

A. Production of Coal and Other Natural Resource Products. The tax is measured by the value of the articles mined or produced as shown by the gross proceeds derived from the sale thereof by the producer, the rates being applied against the value of the entire production in West Virginia, regardless of the place of sale or the fact that deliveries are made to points outside the State.

Coal .....	$3.85 per $100.00
Sand, gravel, or other mineral products not quarried or mined; oil, blast furnace slag .....	$4.34 per $100.00
Natural gas (exemptions include deduction of $5,000 annually) .....	$8.63 per $100.00
Limestone or sandstone quarried or mined; and timber .....	$2.20 per $100.00
Other natural resource products .....	$2.86 per $100.00

B. Manufacturing, Compounding or Preparing for Sale. The tax is measured by the value of the articles manufactured, compounded or prepared for sale in West Virginia, as shown by the gross proceeds derived from the sale thereof by the manufacturer or person compounding or preparing the same. The rate, 88 cents on each $100.00 value, applies against the value of the entire production in West Virginia, regardless of the place of the sale or the fact that deliveries are made to points outside the State.

C. (1) Business of Selling Tangible Property at Retail. There is levied a tax of 55 cents on each $100.00 of gross income, as defined by the statute, for this type of business.

(2) Business of Selling Tangible Property at Wholesale. There is levied a tax of 27 cents on each $100.00 of gross income, as defined by the statute, for this type of business.

D. Public Service or Utility Business. The tax rates set forth hereinbelow are levied on the gross income of the following businesses:

Street Interurban and Electric Railways .....	$1.40 per $100.00
---	---------------------

Electric Light and Power Companies (sales) and demand charges, domestic purposes and commercial lighting .....	$5.72 per $100.00
Water Companies .....	$4.40 per $100.00
Electric Light and Power Companies (all other sales and demand charges) .....	$4.29 per $100.00
Natural Gas Companies: Toll Bridges .....	$4.29 per $100.00
Other Public Utilities—(Except telegraph and telephone companies, railways and other transportation companies) .....	$2.86 per $100.00

E. Contracting. There is levied a tax of $2.20 on each $100.00 of gross income, as defined by the statute, for this type of business.

G. Amusement. There is levied a tax of 71 cents on each $100.00 of gross income, as defined by the statute, for this type of business.

H. Service Business or Calling Not Otherwise Specifically Taxed. There is levied a tax of $1.15 on each $100.00 of gross income, as defined by the statute, for this type of business.

I. Business of Furnishing Property for Hire. There is levied a tax of $1.15 on each $100.00 of gross income, as defined by the statute, for this type of business.

K. Banking and other Financial Institutions. There is levied a tax of $1.15 on each $100.00 of gross income, as defined by the statute, for this type of business.

An annual exemption of $50.00 is provided under the Business and Occupation Tax Law for each person, as defined by the statute, engaged in business in the state.

The West Virginia Carrier Income Tax ch. 11, art. 12A, West Virginia Code of 1931, as amended, is an annual tax on incomes of certain carriers. This article repealed the former "privilege tax on certain carrier corporations" and is imposed on every motor vehicle carrier operating on the public highways of this State and every railroad car carrier, railroad carrier, express company, pipeline company, telephone and telegraph company, airline company and any person operating a steamboat or other watercraft, for the transportation of passengers or freight, doing business in the State. The law provides that the foregoing taxpayers shall pay to the State an annual tax for each calendar year. This tax shall be equal to the gross income from all business beginning and ending within the State.

In addition to the tax imposed on gross intrastate income, the tax is imposed on the net income earned within the State.

The business classifications and respective rates are as follows:

	Gross Income Intra-State Rate	Pro-Rated Net Income Rate
Buses .....	$3.30	$6.60	Per $100
Buses (Urban or suburban not exceeding 40 miles one way) .....	$1.65	$5.00	Per $100
Taxis, Refuse and Garbage .....	$2.50	$5.00	Per $100
Truckers and transfer companies .....	$3.30	$6.60	Per $100
Other motor vehicle carriers, railroad car corporations, express corporations or companies .....	$3.30	$6.60	Per $100
Telephone corporations .....	$3.74	$3.74	Per $100
Telegraph corporations .....	$3.30	$6.60	Per $100
Pipeline corporations .....	$3.30	$6.60	Per $100
Persons or corporations operating a steamboat, steamship or airline .....	$3.30	$6.60	Per $100
Railroad corporations .....	$3.30	$6.60	Per $100

The West Virginia Corporate Net Income Tax ch. 11, art 24, West Virginia Code of 1931, as amended, is a conformity statute which imposes a tax on the net income of corporations and similar business organizations at the rate of six per centum. This being a statute, correlated to the Federal Internal Revenue Code, as amended to 1967, it will simplify preparation of state corporation net income tax returns by taxpayers, improve enforcement and aid interpretation of the law through increased use of federal judicial and administrative determinations and precedents.

The tax is paid in four equal installments, the taxpayer preparing an annual declaration of estimated tax and reconciling the same through the filing of an annual return. The due date of the declaration is the fifteenth day of the fourth month of the tax year. The following quarterly payments are due on the fifteenth day of the sixth, ninth and twelfth months of the taxable year. The annual return is due on the fifteenth day of the third month following the close of the taxable year.

DEPARTMENT OF WELFARE

The West Virginia Department of Welfare offers a wide range of programs and services to West Virginians of varied economic levels that are designed to help them in their time of need and to reinforce their efforts to achieve and sustain a level of independence that is within their physical, social, and emotional capacity. From a simplified perspective, the Department's programs and services fall into the four broad categories of cash grants, nutritional aids, medical assistance, and social services.

The Department provides economic assistance through the Federally-funded programs of Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) and Aid to Families with Dependent Children Unemployed (AFDC-U), which offers cash grants to families with children who have been deprived of parental support due to the death, desertion, incarceration, incapacity, or unemployment of one or both parents. In addition, the Department administers a totally State-funded General Assistance Program which provides temporary financial aid to citizens who face emergent situations and offers a monthly cash grant to disabled adults who have been denied Federal Supplemental Security Income (SSI) Program benefits, but who qualify under the State's less restrictive and more realistic eligibility criteria.

In terms of nutritional aids, the Department administers the Federally-funded Federal Food Stamp Program to both public assistance recipients and low-income working families who do not receive Welfare aid. The Department also operates the Government Donated Foods Program which supplies surplus commodities to schools, camps, public institutions, and camp feeding programs.

Through a State and Federally funded Medicaid Program, the Department offers one of the nations most comprehensive Medical Assistance Programs in terms of services covered to children in foster care, public assistance, and social services for recipients and individuals and families who would be eligible for such programs if their income and/or assets did not exceed established maximums. The agency's Medically Needy Program offers medical assistance to any West Virginia family whose high medical bills pushed them to the brink of financial disaster and jeopardized their economic independence.

In addition to the extensive preventive, remedial, and rehabilitative services available to West Virginia's children and families through the Medicaid Program, the Department also provides for the medical needs of West Virginia children from birth to 21 years of age in both Welfare and non-Welfare families who are afflicted by crippling handicaps through a State-funded Crippled Children's Services Program.

In recent years, the Department has moved forward boldly in the realm of social services in an effort to strengthen and reinforce the continued independence of individuals and families. Recognizing that money alone cannot address the unique needs of persons confronted by a variety of misfortunes, the agency has focused on developing a full range of service programs that can zero in on specific human problems and help resolve them in the most efficient, effective, and responsive manner possible. Supplementing its provision of direct services, the Department has aggressively supported and encouraged the development of community-based service resources through purchase of service arrangements.

Protective services for children and adults, day care, delinquency and probation services for youth in conflict with the law, foster care, counseling, employment-related services, chore services, homemaker services and a variety of care arrangements for the aged and handicapped represent only a limited accounting of the broad range of services that are made available to West Virginians irrespective of age or economic position. It is rewarding to note that the agency's financial savings from a reduced public assistance case load and prudent administration has also enabled the Department of Welfare to explore new and progressive frontiers in meeting human needs. Some of the most innovative national firsts that have established West Virginia as an imaginative national leader in the field of public welfare include the Transportation Remuneration Incentive Program, the West Virginia Legal Services Plan, and the Paraprofessional Child Care System.
