Be it enacted by the Legislature of West Virginia:

ARTICLE 3. STATE SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS.

§18-3-13. Behavior Interventionist Pilot Program.

1 (a) The Legislature finds that:
2 (1) Behavior problems of special education students can be better addressed by personnel 3 who specialize in addressing student behavior issues;
4 (2) With the advent of the opioid crisis in recent years in West Virginia, behavior problems
5 in the state's elementary and secondary education system have increased significantly;
6 (3) Behavior problems impact not just the student who is misbehaving, but also other 7 students at the school;
8 (4) The state should explore various ways to address this issue;
9 (5) One such method of successfully addressing behavioral problems could be through 10 the use of behavior interventionists; and

11 (6) A behavior interventionist who is trained to address student behavior issues at a school 12 could free classroom teachers from having to address behavior issues and allow them to focus 13 exclusively on teaching students which could result in academic achievement increases for other 14 students in the classroom.

15 (b) The state superintendent shall immediately establish a Behavior Interventionist Pilot 16 Program to be implemented in two county school districts for the duration of five years. In 17 selecting the two county school districts, the state superintendent shall select districts meeting 18 the following criteria:

19 (1) The districts shall have among the highest number in the state of students with an 20 individual education program;

21 (2) The districts designated by the state superintendent for the pilot program shall have 22 schools that have a significant number of students enrolled with behavior issues; and

23 (3) The districts shall have the resources to hire and train personnel who specialize in 24 addressing students with behavior issues.

25 (c) The county school districts designated for the pilot programs pursuant to this section 26 may immediately create a new employment position, entitled "behavior interventionist", which is 27 a school-based position that specializes in addressing behavior issues at a school. Once the 28 counties are chosen, the county superintendent shall convene a committee consisting of 29 principals, teachers, classroom aides, and the education organizations to establish qualifications
30 and hiring. Behavior interventionists shall be designated by the county board as either a 31 professional person or a service person. If the behavior interventionist is designated as a service 32 person, he or she shall be assigned a pay grade D for the purpose of the salary schedule set forth 33 in §18A-4-8a of this code. The county school districts designated for the pilot programs shall 34 establish the qualifications for personnel employed in the behavior interventionist position and 35 shall establish the initial and continuing training requirements for the personnel employed in the 36 position.

- 37           (d) Annually, for the duration of the pilot programs and once after the conclusion of the 38 pilot programs, the county superintendents of the county school districts designated for the pilot 39 programs shall report to the Legislative Oversight Commission on Education Accountability on:
- 40           (1) Progress toward and methods of implementation of the pilot programs, including the 41 required qualifications and training for personnel employed in the behavior interventionist position;
- 42           (2) Indicators of the success of the pilot programs, which may include reductions in 43 disciplinary actions and increases in student achievement at the schools in which the behavior 44 interventionists are assigned;
- 45           (3) Their recommendation on whether the pilot programs should continue beyond the 46 current duration of the pilot programs; and
- 47           (4) Their recommendation on whether the pilot programs should be replicated in other 48 school districts that have a high percentage of students with an individual education program, that 49 have schools with significant student behavior problems, or both, and if so, how the pilot programs
50 could best be replicated based on the experience and knowledge gained from the pilot programs 51 established pursuant to this section.

NOTE: The purpose of this bill is to require the State Superintendent of Schools to establish a Behavior Interventionist Pilot Program to be implemented in two county school districts for the duration of five years; and allowing the two districts designated by the State Superintendent for the pilot to create a new employment position, entitled "behavior interventionist".
