Be it enacted by the Legislature of West Virginia:

ARTICLE 9. INTERNET AND TELECOMMUNICATIONS.

§46A-9-1. Prorated bill credits for internet or telecommunication service outages.

1 (a) Legislative purpose — The purpose of this section is to require internet or 2 telecommunications service providers that fail to provide subscribed customers service for five or 3 more days (120 hours) to automatically credit the customer's account for the lack of service
4 proportional to the number of days of disrupted services and providers doing business in this state 5 from charging a customer for services that the customer has not received and further, prohibiting 6 billing of customer for services during an extended service interruption caused by the provider.
7 Therefore, the purpose of this section is to place reasonable limitations on the billing practices of 8 internet or telecommunications providers to assure that consumers are not required to pay for long 9 service outages caused by the provider when he or she did not receive services, and further, 10 prohibit billing for these services in periods when the consumer is not receiving internet or 11 telecommunications services.

12 (b) For purposes of this section:

13 "Consumer" means any person or entity that purchases internet or telecommunications 14 services for personal or business use.

15 "Internet and telecommunication service provider" means any person, business, or 16 organization qualified to do business in this state that provides individuals, corporations, or other 17 entities with the ability to connect to the internet or provide telecommunication services.

18 (c) If an internet or telecommunications service to a subscriber is interrupted for more than 19 five days (120) continuous hours for reasons not outside the reasonable control of the provider, the 20 subscriber shall automatically receive a credit or refund from the internet or telecommunications 21 service provider, in the next billing cycle, an amount that represents the proportionate share of 22 such service not received in a billing period, provided the interruption is not caused by the 23 subscriber. Large-scale cyber-attacks, critical software or hardware failures, outages caused by 24 the consumer, and force majeure, are to be accounted as items outside the provider's reasonable 25 control.

26 (d) If a provider has violated any of the provisions of subsection (c) of this section, the 27 Attorney General may seek a resolution of the violation and may maintain an action against the 28 internet or telecommunications service provider to enforce the provisions of subsection (c) of this 29 section to recover the excessive costs billed to the customer, and a civil penalty may be assessed, 30 in an amount determined by the court, of not less than the cost of one month of service to the 31 customer, but not more than $1,000.

32 (e) Internet service providers shall provide data concerning the number of customers 33 receiving credits per month, the total dollar amount of credits provided per month, and the 34 geographic scope of outages of 120 hours or more for which credits were required. These reports 35 shall contain the same information provided to the Network Outage Reporting System and must be 36 provided monthly to the Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General, not later than the 37 10th day after the end of the preceding month and reflect the preceding month's number of 38 outages. All such information provided to the Attorney General shall be held confidential, but may 39 be utilized by the Attorney General for data analysis and consumer protection. In months where 40 there are no outages for 120 hours or more for which credits were required, no report shall be 41 required.

42 (f) As defined by 47 U.S.C. §153, the provisions of §46A-6-111 do not apply to mobile 43 service disruptions.
